Ag Forum Brings Exploits Of Congress, Susquehanna Water Commission Into Focus

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)—An intense discussion of the Susquehanna River Basin Commission's proposed water use fees and the impact of the attempted government overthrow in the Soviet Union formed the basis for a much larger than expected attendence at the Ag Issues Forum breakfast Tuesday morning.

Michael Brubaker, agronomy consultant and founder of the forum, said 10 reservations came in advance for the meeting at Willow Valley Restaurant. But before US Congressman Robert Walker and Robert Bielo and Richard Cairo, executive director and secretary, respectively, of the commission, took the stand, 50 farmers and agribusiness persons filled the small room behind the bakery.

"What's happening in the Soviet Union will impact US agriculture," Walker said. "The Soviet Union is a very important market for grain and under more recent credit oriented grain selling programs, I think it is questionable that the Congress would extend credit to the new regime should the coup stay in place."

Walker said the reduced exports could force the US government to buy more surplus grain. But by Wednesday, reports of the coup's failure to keep control of the Soviet government allayed these fears and sent November beans limit up on the Chicago Board of Trade.

On a national drought assistance program, Walker said he didn't expect a decision to be made for several weeks. "We know we have a drought situation in many Pennsylvania counties," Walker said. "But the overall national situation still has not been fully assessed. If we have significent losses over the nation, I think there will be considerable pressure for a national drought program."

DAIRY PROGRAM

Walker said the national dairy bill that did not get out of committee had both economic and political ramifications. "Economically, the bill went in a direction that we in this nation have long rejected," Walker said. "It imposed enforceable guarantees in the market place and was specifically an attempt by the mid-West to redefine the national market in ways so that they can introduce their porducts into what has traditionally been Northeast markets.

"Everybody in the Northeast needs to understand what's happening here," Walker said. "I realize a lot of dairy co-ops could care

Milk Board Shows Support For Drought-Stricken Farmers

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — There is no drought of talk of support for Pennsylvania's dairymen who could be facing a fall and winter with strained income and empty feed bins.

At least from public officials. But the private citizen has an opportunity to be heard also — an informal hearing by the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) is still going on and is open to the public.

The PMMB is an agency which was created to protect Pennsylvania's dairymen. It sets prices and regulates the industry, and attempts to ensure fair prices and high quality product.

The current drought hearing, as such, started August 15 as an informal hearing and has continued to remain open. It means that the board is still accepting any and all testimony from the general public about the effect of the drought on dairymen.

Those wishing to provide testimony may write to the board. Envelopes should be addressed to

Hamming Family's Roots In Holland, Have Successful New Jersey Dairy

WANTAGE, N.J. — When you talk cows with Ike and Bruce Hamming, you get a feeling of international roots that have grown into a very practical registered Holstein family farm. And when you walk through the barns, you see the strength, dairy character, and good udders on these cows that let you know why this is the top 1990 DHIA herd in Sussex County.

From the time he was 18 years old, growing up in Holland, Ike had the desire to immigrate. And when he was 24 years old, he found his wife, Janet, who had the same desire. So after the immigration papers were in order, they were married and left home to cross the ocean on a nine-day trip to Canada.

"It was a big honeymoon cruise," Ike said with a laugh. "Six of the nine days we were seasick."

After the Hammings arrived in Canada, Ike worked in a coal and lumber yard for a year and then became a herdsman for two years before coming to America in 1956. Soon they started farming and raising their family of children, which includes Peter, Margret, Bruce, Renee, and Ray.

"It's completly different now

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Regina Landis showed total surprise and astonishment at clutching the coveted trophy. She admitted that she did a lot better this year than last, picking up supreme champion sheep at the Elizabethtown Fair Wednesday.

Regina, a sixth grader at Locust Grove Mennonite, exhibited her Hampshire ewe lamb, "Amber," in the middle of one of the longest and largest sheep shows in Pennsylvania. The Landis family, including brother Wendall, nearly swept the awards in the Hampshire breed class.

Regina, daughter of Abe and Dottie Landis, Manheim, has exhibited four years at the Elizabethtown Fair. The family manages 60 Hampshire sheep at West View Acres, and she plans to show at the Manheim Fair in October. Regina also showed for two years at the

Aug. 20, 1991

Prices were irregular but trade sentiment was improving. Further processors were looking for a turn around in the market and for the most part were not as willing to discount product. Buyers were active and in several instances still a bit selective. Raw materials were fully adequate and breakers usually maintained desired schedules.

Availability of heavy hens are also short of desired needs and buyers are looking outside of the area in order to secure needed slaughter stocks. You'll Get Higher Test Weights With Hoffman 89 Wheat

And we've got university trials to prove it

It's a fact. In 1989 and 1990 trials conducted by the Pennsylvania State University, Hoffman 89 wheat topped the field everytime.

In Centre County, its two-year average test weight of 58.4 lb/bu beat the average by 3.5 lb/bu. And in Lancaster County, Hoffman 89 posted an average 54.8 lb/bu test weight compared to a field average of 51.0.

With test weights like these, you'll get full price for every bushel of wheat you produce. And that's money in the bank. Talk to your Hoffman sales representative today, or call Hoffman Seeds toll free: 800-776-7929.

OPINION

That's (Not) Expected

Last year when the price paid to dairymen for milk was at an all-time high, the price for dairy products in the supermarket rose to the occasion. That's expected.

This year, many farmers consider the much lower price they have received for milk to be an all-time low, at least in purchasing power for the goods and services they must buy to keep their operations in production. But the price for dairy products in the supermarket remains about as high as last year. That's not expected.

And now beef producers have the same legitimate gripe. According to the National Farmers Organization (NFO) headquartered in Ames, Iowa, on August 8, the average price of U.S. fed cattle reached $64 per hundredweight. This means that America's cattle feeders are collectively experiencing a daily loss of income in excess of $26,000,000 compared to the March 18 price high of $83 per hundred.

Since the March fed cattle high, a wire service market survey of 15 beef cuts shows that the average retail value of a beef carcass has dropped only $52 per head. During the same five month period, the value of that same carcass cut-out value for packers has dropped $150 per head and the cattle feeder's share has plummeted $220 per head. Considering that the average daily kill is 120,000 cattle, the loss to producers reaches more than $26,000,000 daily.

It's true that farmers are holding their cattle to heavier weights, and that's a mistake on their part. But the truth is that the added weight is the equivalent of only 6,000 head per day. Even adding in these "extra" pounds, we are still killing fewer head and processing fewer pounds of beef than we were a year ago. Heavier weight cattle are contributing to the problem, but they're not the real reason for the price drop. Retailers are making a profit-killing at the expense of both farmers and packers.That's not expected.

The retail food industry could do a lot to help the movement of beef and dairy products. They must make a profit, but rather than take advantage of a windfall situation, they should cut their profits to reasonable levels and feature more beef in their advertising. That's expected.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Consider Ensiling Corn

As a result of the drought, many farmers will find it beneficial to ensile all their corn this year. Also you may want to consider ensiling your neighbor's corn fields.

Before harvesting your corn for grain, you may want to make sure you or your neighbors have enough silage. Your corn fields may be worth more as silage. Indications are there will be a good corn harvest in the Midwest. Also, check to see which fields are pollinating and which ones are not.

Fields that have not pollinated well and barren stalks make decent corn silage if the plant is allowed to mature. Instead of being in the ear, the nutrients remain in the stalk. You may have noticed that many barren stalks turn red. This is due to their higher sugar content.

To Calibrate Before Seeding

Before seeding any forages or small grains this fall, calibrate your seeder. This could save you money while insuring the stand you are striving for.

Knowing the ideal seeding rate for a crop is only half the battle. Knowing how much seed is being applied by your seeder is the final step in achieving desired plant population.

A study in Wisconsin found that most growers knew how much seed was suggested per acre but few knew exactly how much seed was being applied until the job is done.

University of Wisconsin Agricultural Engineers found the same setting on a seeder gave a large variation in the amount of seed used per acre in an alfalfa seeding trail.

Several factors contributed to the difference. These factors included seed size and whether the seed was coated or not.

Seeder calibration is fairly easy. Each time a variety of seed is changed, the seeder should be recalibrated. To calibrate a seeder, spread a tarp on the ground and run the seeder over it. Then select several sites on the tarp and count or weigh the number of seeds in a square foot area. To convert to an acre, multiply the average weight per square foot by 43,560.

To Update Legal Papers

When was the last time you reviewed your will? If it has been several years, you need to review it and make necessary changes.

The increase in land values, expansion in your farm enterprises, new additions to your family, and change in life insurance coverage are a few items that require changes in your will.

When you are reviewing your will, you also need to update your financial records. You need to have in a central location a listing of bank accounts, insurance policies, purchase dates, and prices of capital assets (land, buildings, equipment, stock in companies including cooperatives, etc.), loans, and investments. This will make the job of settling your estate easier and insure your family receive everything they are entitled too. With some advance planning and organization, you will eliminate many problems and frustrations.

Editor:

We have had a lot of deer damage over the years (30) on our corn and vegetable grain and pasture fences etc. They got most of the sweet corn most of the time. The Pa. Game Commission has never come to see the damage, nor has it recognized the damage. It runs into the high thousands, and the deer are constantly wrecking the electric fences and causing cattle to go out of the pastures. The Game Commission and the lawmakers know about it very well. Explaining the deer damage to the Game Commission is like Dr. Einstein trying to explain the theory of relativity to an eighteen-year-old that is still in the third grade. It's very futile.

They have made a "hot spot" program which is a sly crooked gimmick to open up farmland to public hunting for free. Even the mafia couldn't be more clever. That's freeloading at its lowest. They take us farmers for suckers as they have for years.

ZEALOT OR BIGOT?

August 25, 1991

Background Scripture:
Nehemiah 12:27 — 13:31.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 92:1-15.

Nehemiah would do well today as a television evangelist. He is dramatic, uncompromising, forceful, and he has no doubt that his convictions are the will of God. He is a zealot for God.

Or is he a bigot? Sometimes there is a very fine line between the two. No doubt about it, Nehemiah accomplished a great deal with the people of Israel. The temple and walls of Jerusalem would not likely have been built without his dynamic leadership and capacity for organization. I do not doubt that God was able to do much good through him.

But I cannot overlook the harm he did with his passion for racial exclusivity. I appreciate that he was trying to keep Judaism pure from foreign influences, but this emphasis not only did not work over the long run, it also served as a problem, which plagued the Jews throughout their history, both in their understanding of who they were and in their relations with other peoples. It placed an ordinate emphasis upon who they were, rather than what they did about it. Later, Jesus would say, "...and do not presume to say to yourselves, 'We have Abraham as our father'; for I tell you, God is able from these stones to raise up children to Abraham" (Mt. 4:9). Faithful response, not race, is the key to being a child of God.

PRIDE VS. HUMILITY

One of the problems with this racial exclusivity — the ban against foreign wives (note: foreign husbands are never mentioned!) — is that it led to racial pride rather than humility. It was this pride which often became arrogance and probably did more to corrupt the faith than any other single factor. Christians have often suffered from a similar arrogance of exclusivity. We, too, are likely to forget that it is not so much what a person calls himself or herself, but how a person responds to the love and will of God. We Christians have had more than our share of bigots.

The problem is that God needs people of zeal to do his bidding. At the same time, the zealous person can all too easily become an arrogant bigot. The fine line between these two roles is probably in being zealous because of what God has done for us, rather than because of what we think we can do for him. If we focus on our ideas, our experiences, our perspectives — even our understandings of what God wants — we end up being impaled on our own egos and there is nothing sharper and more deadly. Zealousness will be harmful unless it is surrounded and grounded in humility.

SELF-RIGHTEOUS PRAYER

For all the good that he did, Nehemiah comes across as a self-righteous man. In his prayer in chapter six, he recites rather proudly his accomplishments and goes on to ask God to "Remember Tobiah and Sanbalat, O my God, according to these things that they did, and also the prophetess Noadiah and the rest of the prophets who wanted to make me afraid" (6:14). Later he prays, "Remember me, O my God, concerning this, and wipe not out my good deeds that I have done for the house of my God and for his service" (13:14). He ends the 13th and last chapter with another prayer in which he commends himself to God: "Thus I cleansed them from everything foreign... Remember me, O my God, for good!" (13:30,31).

(No sooner did I read those words than I found myself asking: "Have I ever prayed like that?" Have you?)

Finishing the Book of Nehemiah, I breathe a sigh of relief and say, "Bring on the New Testament!"

Hamming Family's Roots In Holland, Have Successful New Jersey Dairy Farm

Brown's bulk feed delivery truck visits Foothill Acres.

Many individual cows in the herd could be sited for their production records. Here are several of note:

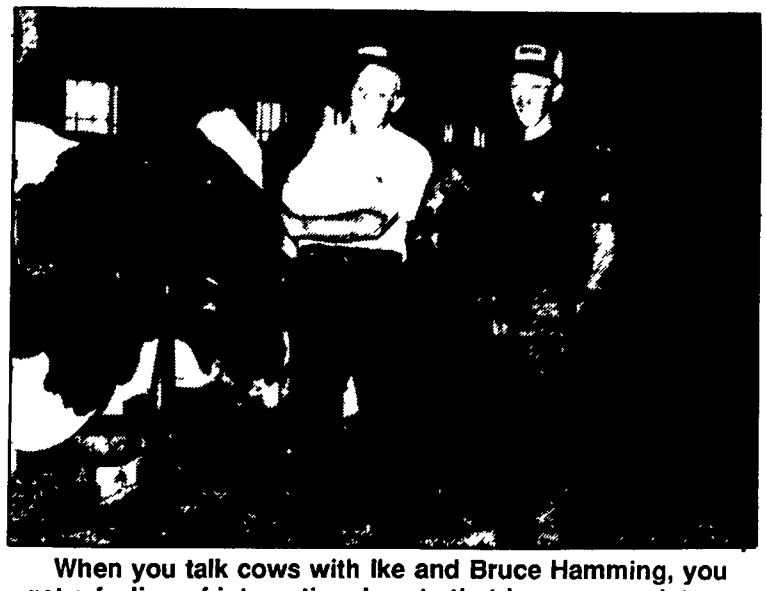
Foothill Acres Persuader Olive (VG88-EX Mammary) 365d; 30,426m; 3.4%; 1046f; 3.2% 959p

Lodestar First Ovation (VG85) over 200,000m lifetime

Foothill Acres Bell Oralee (VG87) TPI 856; Milk, 1897; CFP +95; $206; Type, 1.44; Udder Component 1.03. Ovation's 3y record is over 32,000m

Foothill Acres Starwars Genie (VG88-Ex Mammary) 3y 328d; 27,825m; 3.0%; 822f; 2.9%; 806p

Even with a herd average of 21,293m, 3.6%, 763f, 3.2%, 685p, on DHIR the Hammings still feel they are building the herd.



When you talk cows with Ike and Bruce Hamming, you get a feeling of international roots that have grown into a very practical registered Holstein family farm. And when you walk through the barns, you see the strength, dairy character, and good udders on these cows that let you know why this is a top 1990 DHIA dairy herd in Sussex County. Ike and Bruce Hamming with Foothill Acres Persuader Olive, their 30,000m, 1046f cow.

Composting Conference

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Fall will soon be here and with the season comes leaves and other green material from the trees, shrubs, vegetable and flower gardens.

One way to easily take care of this material is through composting. Composting is an age old art that has been rediscovered because of recent legislation limiting yard and garden waste into landfills.

Instructors for the course are from the York County Master Gardners and the course is being offered on a Tuesday evening, Sept. 17, from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. The cost of the course is $8 and it includes a composting manual and refreshments.

All classes are designed for the gardening public and are to be informative for the novice or seasoned gardener.

To register for the course, send a check made payable to Agricultural Extension. The address should be Penn State Extension, c/o Home Horticultural Seminars, 1383 Arcadia Road, Room 1, Lancaster, 17601.

The course is to be held in the downstairs classrooms of the Farm and Home Center, located at 1383 Arcadia Road in Lancaster.

Currently, the downstairs meeting room of the Farm and Home Center is accessible only by stairs. If stairs are not acceptable to attend the class because of use of a wheelchair or crutches, call H. Bruce Hllerick at (717)394-6851, at least five days prior to the scheduled program to arrange for an alternative meeting site.

Supreme Sheep

Harrisburg Farm Show and plans to exhibit sheep again at the show.

The supreme animal competed against the other breeds, winning champion of nine breeds. The sheep also competed against the champion market lamb and selling lamb to garner supreme title.

The supreme champion was "the ideal animal" in the mind of Dirk Wise, manager of the Penn State Poultry Research Farm and judge for the show. Wise is a Centre Co. sheep farmer and a former assistant Penn State shepherd.

The market lamb champion was chosen from an "extremely competitive class," said Dirk. The champion and reserve, when chosen, "handled well" and had the "definitive muscling" the industry requires. Both looked good in the hind length and were real smooth down the back, according to Dirk. In the end, it was Garth Campbell's 125-pound heavyweight animal that grabbed the championship. Lisa Reiff, who won supreme champion at the fair last year, became reserve champion with her 105-pound medium weight champion.

Champion selling market lamb went to Lisa Reiff, while Garth Campbell received reserve.

Ephrata Girl Shows Grand Champion Hog

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — Although outsized by her entry, young Sarah Boyd, of Ephrata, Tuesday showed the grand champion market hog of the Elizabethtown Fair youth hog show.

Boyd showed confidence in showing the light heavyweight hog, which judge Charles Hall, of Julian, Centre County call meaty and well structured.

The youth hog show is designed so that after the hogs are weighed in and numbered, they are broken down into manageable groups for judging, according to weight.

There were 13 class under the four divisions of lightweight, medium weight, light heavyweight, a heavyweight. 90 hogs were entered. The show, inlcuding the showmanship contest, took almost five hours, and was called to a halt while heavy thunderstorms with high winds chased away fairgoers and nearly upset the large show tent.

Last year the Elizabethtown Fair suffered a depressed turnout because of rain. This year fair committee took out an insurance policy against losses due to inclimate weather. They expected to be able to cash in on the policy for Tuesday, but officials said Thursday that not enough rain fell to activate the policy.

Taking home a reserve grand champion plaque was Travis Donough, who won with a medium weight hog.

In the showmanship competition, in the 11-years-old and younger division, Nathan Kreider was first and Zach Germak was second. In the 12- to 15-year-old division, Matt Umbrell was first and Jonathan Coble was second and in the 16-year-old and older division, Justin Good was first and Karen Becker was second.

Board Shows Support

the PMMB at 2301 N. Cameron St., Harrisburg, 17110-9408.

According to PMMB Deputy Executive Secretary Frank DeGarcia, the PMMB has taken the initiative to gather as much information as it can now before the board meets in the fall, when crop harvests are better known.

That way, DeGarcia explained, the board can better decide whether it needs to take any action to provide aid to the state's dairymen, what that amount should be, and how it should be dispered.

"Hopefully, in September and October, the board will have enough information to protect our farmers and that is our job," DeGarcia said.

Two board members — Chairman Donald Lanius and member Leon Wilkinson — who are paid a nominal stipend for the monthly meetings, used their own funds to travel to or through 37 counties to make their own on-site visual inspections of farms.

They traveled a swath two, three, or more counties wide, across the state from Chester to Crawford counties. They jotted notes about the conditions of the crops and general observations and submitted it to the board for pre-hearing information.

Last week several officials sent letters of testimony to the board in response to the informal hearing.

Prompted by the drought, state Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff, in a letter, stated his support of quick action by board members to do whatever they feel is necessary to prevent family dairy farms from going out of business.

Similarly, the state Grange also issued a statement in support of the PMMB to aid dairymen.

Also speaking about his concern for the state's dairymen, U.S. Sen. Harris Wofford also spoke to a crowd at Penn State University's Ag Progress Days in Rockspring, Centre County, and fowarded information to the board.

Wofford talked about how he has been attempting to get emergency legislation that would provide $1.75 billion for American farmers for drought relief.

In his letter to the board, Secretary Wolff said, "Estimates suggest farmers' losses may top $600 million. And those losses come at a time when federally set milk prices are at the lowest levels since 1978.

"I ask that you carefully compile a full and complete record and be prepared to take proper action to prevent the loss of dairy farms. If the loss of farms continues, and worse, if the loss is accelerated by this year's drought disaster, Pennsylvania's consumers would be the big losers."

In the letter, Wolff said that he and Gov. Robert Casey toured a York County farm in July which prompted Casey to make a request to the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture for a declaration of drought disaster.

That was for 27 counties whose local offices of the USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) made preliminary estimates of drought damage.

Some county offices did not act as quickly and more recently 15 additional counties were added to the list seeking emergency relief.

"On behalf of farmers and consumers, and on behalf of Pennsylvania's economy, I ask that you consider all the input you will receive very carefully, and then take action that protects the long-term interests of all the people of Pennsylvania," Wolff wrote.

According to a news release issued the same day from the Pennsylvania State Grange, Robert Pardoe, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Grange Dairy Committee, told the PMMB that he polled his committee members on their local conditions and the reports were all for poor crop production.

The Grange committee members' reports were from Blair, Berks, Bradford, Bucks, Erie, Lancaster, and Perry counties.

According to the Grange news release, "Since it is difficult to estimate the exact yield before harvest, the Grange called for no action from the board, except to offer any help possible to the dairy farmers."

Pardoe also thanked the PMMB members for continuing the $1.05 over-order price premium for dairymen, which has been in effect since 1988.

Sen. Wofford, who was appointed to his position after the death of Sen. John Heinz, critized the Bush administration for not acting on behalf of the American farmer.

"The administration wants to give unconditional Most Favored Nation trade status to China. I think it's time to give 'Most Favored Neighbor' status to America's farmers who feed our national and the world."

Wofford offered some of the same observations made by Secretary Wolff, although he put the Pennsylvania crop loss estimate at $800 million.

He did, however, warn that the disaster declaration he and others have been seeking from the U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan that would make farmers in 42 counties eligible for low interest loans should not be seen as a cure-all, but more of a bandage.

"This aid would help, but it won't pay the bills," Wofford said, in a statement. "More loans would only force our farmers deeper into debt as they struggle to repay their operating loans. The kind of assistance they need must be immediate, direct payment for losses due to drought conditions."

According to Wofford, an executive disaster declaration would make loans available to those farmers in 42 counties, while federal disaster assistance legislation would provide aid to all of the state's farmers.

"Our state's farmers have been forced to watch their crops dry up because of a natural disaster, while the administration in Washington sits back and waits.

"They obviously haven't visited Pennsylvania farms where crops have been destroyed, pastures are dried up and winter feed stocks are nearly depleted. The time is now for the President and his Secretary of Agriculture to take emergency action if our family farms are to survive and build the kind of future that Ag Progress Days are all about."

Bill Perry Addresses DHIA Supervisors

BOB ORMSBY

"You have the most important job in the world. Do you know why it is the most important job in the world?" Bill Perry, manager of governmental affairs for MMI, posed this question to the DHIA supervisors and their spouses at the 67th Annual Summer Conference held recently at the Ramada Hotel in Altoona.

"Because it is your job. No one else has your job and probably you don't want anyone else to have it. That makes it the most important job in the world to you." Bill went on in his encouraging, sometimes humorous style to convince the 270 people in attendance that where you are at the time, and the task you are performing, should be given your very best.

PA DHIA operates under a cooperative structure and the members have a voice. Bill emphasized to the supervisors that members have a right to complain to them about their concerns. He challenged his audience to be "encouragers" and to remain optimistic.

Bill Perry represents Milk Marketing Inc. (MMI), a Strongsville, Ohio-based milk marketing cooperative, as their governmental information specialist. Much of his time is spent in Washington, DC lobbying for dairy interests. Bill enjoys what he does, does his best at what he does, and has the "most important job in the world."

The highlight of the conference is usually the awards ceremony. This year, 63 supervisors earned the Award of Merit, 24 received Length of Service Awards, and 12 "once in a career" awards were presented.

Pictures and biographies of the award winners will appear in the future. The following is an account of the Award of Merit recipients.

To earn the Award of Merit, a PA DHIA supervisor must have completed at least one full year of service, tested a minimum of 264 units (22 per month) and score at least 80 out of a possible 100 on the following criteria: Accuracy of data (errors per thousand), 25 percent; test interval, 20 percent; percent non-testable samples, 15 percent; annual performance evaluation, 15 percent; mailing time for samples, 10 percent; meeting and conference attendance, 15 percent.

Many supervisors receive the Award of Merit for several years consecutively.

This year's winners are:

Region 1: David Hitchcock, Martha Ohl, Cindy Davis, Christina Deeter, and Jean Wolfe.

Region 3: Gary Davies, Linda Wagner, Steward Rosengrant, Gerald Pratt, William McIlwain, Terry Willow, Gary Williams, John Loughner, Inez Moss, Denise Solt, Scott Williams, Steven Kammer.

Region 4: Harold Boldosser, Walter Stydinger, Marianne Walter, James Batz, Shane Henry, George Cashell, Carol Spatz, James Benfield, JoAnn Moser, Criss Hess, Gerald Miller, J. Arlan Crider, David Shenk, Michael Beaver, Andrew Baer, David Somers, and John O'Toole.

Region 2: Dean Grimes, Richard Bigelow, Darrell Brumbaugh, Ronald Morgan, Lynn Lee Bowersox, Anne Brooks, Judy Esque, Lynn Rhodes, Carolyn Loucks, Robert Ream, Leonard Miller, William Meyers, Ralph Rudy, Anne Couch, Kenneth Smith,

HayNet Starts

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Even though it will be some time before "official" shortages of forages become publicly documented, the lack of feed because of drought is considered widespread.

The reality of shortages has caused Pennsylvania State University agriculture extension specialists to kick up its "HayNet" — a computer hay trading service.

In a recent news release, Richard Adams, extension specialist, said, "Farmers with hay to sell, or in need of hay, may be placed on this computerized listing, as was done in the 1988 drought.

"Listings may be entered at county agricultural extension offices on PENmail for Marvin Hall in agronomy extension."

Hall's office staff will transcribe the listings to PENpages for use by all people with access to this network, on behalf of farmers and dealers.

According to Hall, the impetus for resurecting the HayNet system "came from county agents who called and said we're running out of hay and what are we going to do?"

Hall, a forage extension specialist and assistant professor in the PSU Agronomy Department, said he had learned of the HayNet and initiated it, but it "started from the bottom and came up."

As of presstime, no listing was available, but according to Marvin Hall, "We should have it up and running by Sept. 1, unless something happens."

In the meantime, to help it get going possibly before then, those interested in selling hay and buying hay through the system should contact their extension office immediately.

Individuals with access to the PENmail system can send the information to Hall.

And once it's up, "People can go through ASCS, SCS . . . anybody who has access to PENpages, and can access HayNet and get names of people who have hay to sell."

Contest Deadline Nears

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Some of the top dairy cattle judges in the United States and Canada will compete in the All-American Invitational Youth Dairy Cattle Judging Contest.

4-H, FFA, and intercollegiate dairy cattle judging teams will place 10 classes from five breeds in hopes of winning one of the most prestigious judging contests in America.

This year's contest held on Monday, Sept. 23, will mark the 23rd anniversary of the contest. Last year, 35 teams from 20 states judged in the contest.

Teams which represent any of the three groups are eligible to participate and must enter by Sept. 1.

N. Alan Bair serves as superintendent of a contest that previous team coaches have rated "the best in the U.S.".

The cooperation of the cattle exhibitors in making their top dairy cattle available for this contest is one of the reasons the contest ranks so high among competitors. The facilities and hospitality have also been rated excellent by past contestants.

A committee selects the classes to be judged from animals entered in the All-American Dairy Show. Official judges then make their official placings at the same time contestants are placing the classes.

Competitors are also asked to justify their placings on some classes by giving oral reasons to the official judge for that class. The combination of placing score and reasons score will then determine the individual's point total.

The highlight of the Invitational Youth Dairy Cattle Judging Contest is the awards banquet sponsored by Agway and Atlantic Breeders Cooperative.

HYTEST Invites Growers To View Hybrids

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Don Willis, manager of HYTEST research and development, will host an educational Agronomy Day to examine three new corn hybrids on Thursday, Aug. 29 at a HYTEST Corn test plot located on Rt. 501 and Elco Road in Myerstown.

The Agronomy Day will examine 100- to 122-day corn hybrids, particularly population studies and a tour of the breeding nursery at the site.

Three new experimentals available this fall — HTX7510, HTX7728, and HT474 — will be shown.

"We hope to educate dealers that hybrids do best when they're placed properly into the proper field scenarios," said Dee Merica, HYTEST representative.

The scenarios will examine what the farmer must do in order to obtain the yields needed.

For more information, contact the HYTEST customer service department at (800) 759-SEED.

New Ultra:Lac 22. When the temperature climbs over 80°F in the shade, a cow's milk production and your profits can head in the other direction. Nothing robs a cow of her ability to make milk like the draining effects of heat stress, especially in early lactation. And your top producers can be affected the most.

Ultra:Lac 22 combines the unique benefits of MEGALAC® rumen bypass fat with a specialized blend of proteins, vitamins, minerals, sodium bicarbonate, Dairyman's Edge, even flavor enhancers, to help battle heat stress.

By increasing a cow's dry matter intake, stabilizing rumen fermentation, and decreasing electrolyte imbalances due to fluid loss, Ultra:Lac 22 can help cows beat the heat. And because it's an enriched "package" of top-dress feed supplements, you can feed it to the cows that need it most—when they need it most.

To find out how Ultra:Lac 22 can help your herd handle heat stress, contact your Agway Farm Enterprise salesperson today.

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)— Pennfield Corporation President Donald Horn announces the promotion of Hugh R. MacWilliam to Vice President of Pennfield. MacWilliam previously was Vice President and General Manager of Beachley-Hardy Seed Company, a division of Pennfield. He will continue to have responsibilities with the seed division and will assume other duties in the Agriculture Products Group of Pennfield.

Concurrent with this change, Frank Welch was promoted to the position of General Manager, Beachley-Hardy Seed Company. A native of Delaware and a graduate of the University of Delaware, Welch joined Beachley-Hardy in 1982 as Director of Marketing.

Clair Spicer replaces Welch as Marketing Manager for the seed division. Spicer, a native of New York, and a graduate of State University of New York, Morrisville, joined Beachley-Hardy in 1982 as a Sales Representative and has served as Sales Manager and Marketing Associate.

Beachley-Hardy Seed Company began operations in 1950 as a seed grower/processor and marketer of farm, turf and conservation seeds throughout the northeast and Middle Atlantic States.

Major product groups include W-L Alfalfas, Hardy Brand Hybrid Corn, Hardy Brand Soybeans and numerous other superior varieties of many different species.

Wool, Lamb Producers Vote Now

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) will conduct a referendum Aug. 19-30 for wool and lamb producers to vote on continuation of an agreement between the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the American Sheep Industry Association (ASI) for a wool market promotion and improvement program.

Ray A. Brubaker, county executive director of the Lancaster County ASCS Office, said the agreement authorizes deductions from producers' price support payments to finance the ASI's activities.

"These funds are used by the industry for advertising and sales promotion programs for wool in domestic and foreign markets, and for information programs on production management and market development and improvement," he said.

If producers approve continuation of the agreement, Brubaker said that up to 7¢ per pound on shorn wool marketings, and 35¢ per hundredweight on unshorn lambs, would be deducted for 1991.

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — A surprise supreme champion emerged at the open dairy show portion of the Bedford County Fair.

The surprise was in Swopedale Farms, from Needmore, taking the honors with "Paula," a 4-year-old Holstein cow.

It wasn't a surprise that the Holstein was named to the all-breed title, but the owners are newcomers to the showring. It's rare when a rookie takes top honors at a show.

The Swopes, who farm 300 acres and have 42 cows on milk test, are first generation farmers.

Reserve open honors went to A-K Mohr of Baker's Summit. Mark Baker, New Enterprise, took home the Holstein trophy in junior dairy competition and Jennifer Hite was the reserve champion.

Taking top Guernsey honors was Snider Homestead Farms of New Enterprise. Sniders took all top honors in both junior and senior competition with the exception of junior reserve grand. That animal is owned by Beth Clark, former national Guernsey princess.

In the Jersey breed, it was the Sollenbergers of Rolaine Jerseys in Everett, and the Koontz family from Stan-El Jerseys in Friends Cove.

Lori Sollenberger had the senior and grand champion in open competition. Far from a newcomer to the Bedford County Fair, Lori started showing cows in 1970. The judge chose, "Rolaine Bourbon Bensun," a 3-year-old, for her udder. Bensun was also first place in udder competition.

Janelle Koontz, Bedford County's dairy maid, showed the reserve and grand champions in the junior show. Her "Sunkist," and "Sweet and Sour," mean a lot to this Bedford 8th grader who aspires to be a veterinarian.

The Stan-El farm took reserve honors in open competition.

There was little competition among the Ayrshires and Sam J. Diehl of Friends Cove took the top honors in open class while the Schillings of Williamsburg captured junior honors.

The Schilling family of Williamsburg took top Brown Swiss honors and, among Red and White breed, it was the Truaxs.

less about this. They are interested in keeping their plants in production and profitable. So these co-ops are willing to buy into this kind of system. But I think (individual) farmers themselves need to understand that markets in this area (Northeast) that have been asking for more milk, may no longer be in that position under the proposed dairy bill. Your chance of having even spikes up in the price of milk will be substantially diminished for a more nationally based system based on minimums rather than maximums. You need to understand that this is the implication behind the dairy bill," Walker said.

Politically, Walker said word around Congress was that as far as the agricultural committee was concerned, this was more a political issue than a real issue. And that what was happening was an attempt to defeat certain western senators by composing a dairy bill so bad these senators would be caught with the necessity to oppose a national dairy bill even though they are from a dairy state.

However, the way the bill came out of committee, the leadership of both parties saw that the bill was so bad it had a good chance to be defeated in the House. And the politics turned around and they became afraid. The last thing they wanted was for a dairy bill to be defeated on the floor of the House of Representatives. So they pulled back.

Walker said another provision of the bill that "drove a lot of farmers wild" was the provision that called for farmers to pick up the tab for welfare programs under the Department of Agriculture. Programs like the women, infant, and children programs. "A lot of farmers feel it is not their responsibility to pay for these programs," Walker said. "While it was an effort to keep the program from exceeding budget caps, nevertheless, the fees were being imposed on the farmers. This made the bill very hard to pass.

"My guess is that we will get a modification of the bill where the (price support) floor is raised to about $11.10; fees to farmers are abandoned; and they will get rid of the quotas. If they do some of these things, the bill may have a chance of passing. If they maintain the quotas, which have the longest implications, I certainly think it will be defeated and will not have the votes to override a veto."

WATER FEES

The real issue that attendees came to hear discussed was the Susquehanna River Basin Commissions' proposed water fee schedule. Until early June when Lancaster Farming reported the proposal as published in the Federal Register, most farmers did not know there was a commission with jurisdiction over water consumption. They certainly did not know about the water fees because only one farmer, Richard Kreider, Manheim, attended the hearing at that time.

One of the complaints from the floor at Tuesday's breakfast meeting was that farmers were not informed. But Bielo said the hearings were published in official registers, news releases were sent out and advertising was done as required by law. He blamed the news media for not picking up on the notices, farmers for not reading the official notices, and cited cost as the reason for not placing more advertising.

However, Cynthia Boyer-Blakeslee, an attorney, said the reporters in the room from Lancaster Farming, Lancaster Newspapers, and several TV stations would inform farmers free of charge. "You could get all the free publicity you wanted if you were really willing to hear what farmers had to say," Boyer-Blakeslee said.

Bielo thanked the group for the opportunity to clear up things that had gone astray. He said the commission's jurisdiction over water use was not new because any consumptive water project in the basin that orignated after January, 1971, is already under the regulation. "It's only the proposed fee schedule that is new," Bielo said. "No doubt about it. Part of the reason for the proposed fee schedule is to raise money to help pay the costs to review use projects. But we have no field force and we don't know about an irrigation project unless someone tells us. We are not going after irrigators. We are more interested in getting a program that allows us to know where irrigation is happening and under what circumstances.

"Where they don't have a regulation system in place, the water the farmer has been using for years may be allocated to some other permitted use and the farmer can suddenly find he cannot use the water. We think regulations can have advantages.

"One of the things we can do under a permit system is to control the new guy who wants to drill a well that would affect neighboring water supplies," Bielo said.

Amos Funk, a Millersville vegetable farmer, and well-known conservationist expressed concern about unregulated water use caused by development. "I think the right to draw water away from our farms without restriction has reduced our water supply by half," Funk said. "Because other people drill too many wells without regulation, the livestock on our farms may not have enough water to depend on. Maybe regulation will help to correct that.

"On our farm," Funk said, "before 1942, we could get 100gpm. from our well. Now we get 50gpm. We are allowing development to go on without regard to the ground water supply. Those of us in agriculture should be concerned about that."

Cairo explained the difference between the original proposal in May and the one now up for consideration and comment. "At first we wanted to charge fees to defray about 30 percent of the costs we incur when a project comes before the commission," Cairo said. "We have now scaled this down so that it looks like we may only cover 20 percent of our costs. We didn't think this was unreasonable since many other government agencies operate through a fee schedule on regulated users."

FEE SCHEDULE

Initially all consumptive use had proposed application fees from $750 to $12,000 depending on water usage. After comments from earlier public hearings and letters from farmers, Congressmen and agri-businesspersons, the new proposal is labeled Resolution No. 91.

In this resolution under item 3a, the fee for intermittent use of water (for example crop irrigation) is based on average consumption over a consecutive 30 day period. The user must be drawing more than an average of 20,000 gal. per day (gpd) over this 30 day period before he needs a permit to comply with the fee schedule requirements.

Under item 3a(i), if use is over the 20,000gpd but is confined to only a 90 day period each year, the user would need to pay only a one time fee of $250. The yearly monitoring fee would be waived according to item 5a(i).

Under item 3a(ii), all other projects have the former $750 to $12,000 depending on water use above 20,000gpd.

Plowing Contest Features 12-Mule Hitch

Schaefferstown's 21st annual horse plowing contest begins at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 14. The horse parade and horse pull begin at 12:30 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 15.

SCHAEFFERSTOWN (Lebanon Co.)— Saturday, Sept. 14 at 10 a.m. will mark the start of Schaeffertown's horse plowing contest. The Horse Parade will begin at 12:30 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 15, followed by the annual horse pull.

The 12-mule hitch will provide an added attraction this year as visitors may observe the mules working together in the fashion of years ago. A rare threshing demonstration will show an antique ring power, pulled by six mules, driving an old thresher to thresh some of the 1991 wheat crop.

Harry Bechtel will use his steam engine to drive the 100-year-old Frick sawmill operated by Claude Mace. Stone crushing and other demonstrations will be held in the farming area.

The cider press will make fresh cider both days and apple butter cooking will turn a good 1991 apple crop into another local product. The harvest exhibit will display local fruits, vegetables and preserves in their prize-winning arrangements.

Fireplace cooking, bake-oven baking, and outdoor cooking demonstrations will include apple fritters, dried corn and sausage, fresh vegetable soup, pies, apple dumplings, and snitz and knepp, and raspberry shrub. The Dutch Kitchen and the sausage stand will provide tasty foods.

Crafts will include blacksmithing and woodworking, and the traditional grinding of roasted corn meal.

House tours feature the unique Schaeffer House (circa 1758) with its distilling fireplace, massive bake oven, 12 pointed stars believed to be of Swiss origin, the recently uncovered brick fireplace, and the wall of mud and straw which is a mystery to historians. The loghouse over the spring, the barn with its antique farming tools, and the dry house will be open.

Schaefferstown is located on Route 501 north of Lancaster. Admission is $2.50 for adults, and children under 12 are free.

Hamming Family's Roots In Holland,

than when I started farming," Ike said. "When we started off in 1957, I thought we did real good. The cows produced enough to make the payments. At the time, I think we were doing beter than we do today, even though now there is a whole lot more money moving around.

"I personally believe we should go on a quota system for the family farm to survive. My brother in Canada and my brother in Holland both have a quota system, and it has really payed off for them," he said.

When they started a quota system in Canada, they thought the world was going to come to an end. They had to drop from 125 cows down to 85. They didn't think they would make it. But the outcome was just as good. They had the same three families working the farm, but they got $20 or more per hunderedweight for milk.

Ray and Bruce with his wife Mary and children Bruce, 8 and Mark, 4 now farm in partnership with Ike and Janet. John Hardick has worked on the farm since he was a teenager. He not has a full-time job off the farm but comes back often to help.

"The secret to our top producting herd includes a chlorine dropper for the water system, elimination of stray voltage from the cow trainers, and the insallation of a TMR feeding system," Bruce said.

The cows are fed a TMR ration balanced for 70 pounds of milk per cow. Individual cows that exceed 80 pounds of milk are given a top dressed feed of 18 percent protein. Bruce uses the consultation service of Dr. Walter S. Kennett, director of nutrition, F.M. Brown's Sons, Inc.

They milk 124 cows, and have an average of 754,000 pounds of milk per year per man. They use bunk silos, service their own machinery whenever possible, and use a dump truck to hull silage from fields that can be up to seven miles from the barn. Total ground farmed including pasture and woods is 1,400 acres.

In 1981 they dispersed their milking herd that became the highest selling herd in the state of New Jersey at the time. The 60 cows averaged $2,800. They have bred many show cows, the latest is Foothill Acres Elv Szara, who was the first place State Futurity winner in 1990.

The Hammings enjoy helping 4-H youths to show calves and heifers, especially if they would not otherwise have the opportunity to work with the animals.

Many individual cows in the herd could be sited for their production records. Here are several of note:

Foothill Acres Persuader Olive (VG88-EX Mammary) 365d; 30,426m; 3.4%; 1046f; 3.2% 959p.

Lodestar First Ovation (VG85) over 200,000m lifetime.

Foothill Acres Bell Oralee (VG87) TPI 856; Milk, 1897; CFP +95; $206; Type, 1.44; Udder Component 1.03. Ovation's 3y record is over 32,000m.

Foothill Acres Starwars Genie (VG88-Ex Mammary) 3y 328d; 27,825m; 3.0%; 822f; 2.9%; 806p.

Even with a herd average of 21,293m, 3.6%, 763f, 3.2%, 685p, on DHIR the Hammings still feel they are building the herd.

"We are always looking for ways to become more efficient," Bruce said. "We don't mind working hard, but we like to see a profit in the end."

The Hamming father and son partnership check the DHIA records.

Under item 5a(ii), the annual compliance monitoring fee in these consumptive water projects is scheduled from $100 to $1,500 depending on usage.

Item 5b, states: "All ground-water withdrawal projects will be charged $100." This would indicate all wells, regardless of gpd usage, would be subject to the $100 yearly fee.

And item 5d states: "Projects that have consumptive use from ground-water sources will be charged a fee from each category of a and b above (5a & 5b). This would seem to indicate that even if the user was exempted under item 5a(i), the user would still be liable for the $100 yearly fee under item 5b. If the user is liable on the fee schedule under item 5a(ii) an additional $100 would be added to the fee under item 5b.

The resolution defines projects under this fee schedule to include: diversions of water, surface water withdrawls, hydroelectric projects, stream encroachments and local flood protection projects, consumptive uses, ground-water withdrawals and projects determined by the Commission to be subject to its review and approval.

The resolution also states that the commission from time to time after public hearing and upon due notice given, may fix, alter and revise rates, rentals, charges and tolls for any services which it provides.

But Cairo said that even if the Commission is monitering the water usage, the farmer has a common law or riparian right to access and use the water on his land. But in cases where water levels go below what Cairo called the Q7-10 (7 day average of 10 year low) the Commission has the authority to restrict usage.

In addition, Bielo said that where competitive uses cause conflicts between users, the Commission has the authority to declare that area to be especially protected and to require users to obtain special permits. In such cases ground and surface water use may be allocated through a permit system. "We have not done this yet," Bielo said. "But the Delaware River Commission has done it in Southeast Pennsylvania in the Philadelphia area.

Brubaker referred to a large number of states that by the legislative process have taken away the riparian rights of land owners. He said that in Pennsylvania the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) is even now reanalyzing this right.

"Your right to draw water is being reviewed by EPA and by the legislature, Brubaker said. "Agriculture is in a period of regulation. They (the Commission) has now admitted that they have the right to regulate water usage. Water is in a period of regulation. There is no stopping this wave of regulation but agriculture needs to tell these people (the Commission and the legislators) what we think of these regulations. A lot of new regulations may follow."

Lancaster County Agent John Schwartz asked about water usage by livestock and poultry operations. He wanted to know if the fees and regulations set up the Commission applied to these operations.

Cairo referred to the intermittent consumptive fee schedule, but Schwartz said livestock and poultry use water, many of them from ground-water sources, every day of the year.

Cairo then said they were not included because animals sweat and urinate water back into the ecological system and because the Commission has never gone after these operations in the past.

But when asked specifically by a reporter if livestock and poultry operations would be exempted from the fee schedule, Bielo admitted that under the groundwater withdrawal regulations, livestock and poultry operations are included.

Walker concluded his discussion before the members of the Commission were introduced. But he said he was suspicious of a fee schedule that puts farming on the same basis with other users. He said there is a great difference between individual family farmers and large industry that has some elasticity in their abilty to pay fees.

"I am concerned about the definitions and some of the other things we have heard about ground water drawdown that would be part of this fee schedule," Walker said. "I am not very pleased with where I see us moving at the present time. I think there is room for negotiation to work this out, but I'm concerned with the implication for the future.

"We may come up with a somewhat modest program at the present time that could become a very burdensome program depending on who takes over and who decides on the schedule in the future. Once you open the door it's hard to shut it, " Walker said.

Cawley Remains Ag Adviser

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — In announcing his intention to retire as Maryland's Secretary of Agriculture on Nov. 1, Wayne A. Cawley, Jr. said he was pleased to be staying on as a senior agricultural advisor to Governor William Donald Schaefer and the Department of Agriculture.

"I will continue to work hard to promote agriculture in Maryland and work on the agricultural side of our Chesapeake Bay restoration effort," Cawley said.

"What I will miss most about no longer being secretary is the employees at the Maryland Department of Agriculture. They are a great group of people and over the years they have made my job easy," Cawley said.

UDS, Up Country Cheese Sign Agreement

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. — United Dairy Services located in Seneca Falls, N.Y., has recently entered into an agreement with Up Country Cheese of Le Raysville, Pa. to provide management, marketing, accounting, quality control and producer services for their cooperative and cheese manufacturing facility.

United Dairy Services is equipped to provide such services for the dairy industry and other agricultural organizations.

Up Country Cheese manufacturers numerous specialty cheeses such as raw milk aged cheddar, by the old fashioned hand made Amish method, farmer's cheese, feta, Swiss, Somilier and cheese curd.

The business began when a plant, Fairdale Creamery closed down its operations in 1977. A group of mostly Amish dairy farmers needed a place to sell their milk. They formed a cooperative and established a cheese plant using Amish old country methods and hard work.

The cooperative then decided to sell the plant and equipment to a local dairy farmer, James Amory, who took over management duties and leased the plant back to the members to continue cheese making.

Milk used in the processing is supplied by the cooperative members who are mostly local small volume dairy farmers. These smaller family dairy farmers would otherwise have difficulty marketing their milk because handlers and large cooperatives do not believe they can profitably handle small amounts from remote locations.

Up Country Cheese House is a small store in the front of the cheese plant where customers, both local residents and tourists, can not only purchase products made there but also observe through a window the cheese making in progress.

Additional outlets are local stores, gourmet shops and delis in Manhattan's Greenwich Village and Macy's Gourmet Store. Also Up Country Cheese House cheeses are sold at Craft Shows and Flea Markets.

Edward D. Anna, president of United Dairy Services said, "We are looking forward to working with Up Country Cheese, providing expanded markets and product lines, together with useful services, thereby increasing the profitability for local dairy farm families."

The fifth amendment of the U.S. Constitution says "no state shall take private property for public use without just compensation." The Game Commission and the sportsmen have taken and stolen our crops (private property) to feed wildlife (deer etc) and never paid us one cent for these crops. It's time they pay for all wildlife damage including 60-65 million dollars of vehicle damage that deer do to Pennsylvania motorists.

There are more than a million deer in Pennsylvania, far, far in excess of 75 or 100 thousand that it should be. I want the legislators to enact a law that will forbid "closed seasons" on all wildlife that are in excess of suitable numbers. In this case there shall be no closed deer season because they are in excess of 100,000. As soon as that number goes below 100,000 then there could be a closed season. As it stands now deer are in brush (multiflora bushes) among houses in the rural areas and towns in the backyards and are a menace to health and safety of the people. The sportsmen and Pa. Game Commission are acting as silly playboys freeloading on farmers and land owners. That's got to stop. I'm doing my bit to see that it stops. The Game Commission does not pay taxes on the game lands, but we have to pay our taxes and their taxes. That also has to stop. Their lands have to be assessed and taxed, just like everybody else's land is taxed.

Editor:

Small egg producers narrowly avoided disaster with the passage of the Egg Refrigeration bill (HB 175). Had the bill passed in its original form as presented in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, small egg producers would have been completely run out of business in Pa. Thanks to a number of State Senators and Representatives, important amendments were included in the final bill that considerably lessened the impact on small producers.

This bill was originally pushed by the big egg producers who wanted to create a false feeling of security for out-of-state egg buyers concerned about Salmonella Enteritidis (S.E.). Last year, HB 2646 said all eggs had to be refrigerated from farm to final destination. This would have required the purchase of a refrigerated truck even if the small producer was delivering eggs to the corner store. Fortunately, that bill died.

Initially, the bill that has become law stated that all small egg producers (those with less than 3200 birds) in order to be exempt from the newly mandated paperwork mountain had to "sell or market eggs within two days of lay." Many of us fought long and hard to have the bill amended so that small producers could maintain their exemption and still market their eggs within five days. Intelligence and common sense prevailed. Due to the herculean efforts of Representatives Flick and Hershey (Chester Co.), Barley (Lancaster Co.), Godshall (Montgomery Co.) and Senators Baker (Chester/Montgomery Co.), Wenger (Lancaster/Chester Co.) and Helfrick (27th Dist.) as well as Allen Deiter of Pennsylvania Farmers Union and John Hoffman of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation, they not only saved a major part of the poultry industry but preserved many badly needed jobs in Pa. To these gentlemen, I give my sincerest thanks.

Both HB 2646 and 175 were introduced to counter the claims of New York buyers who blamed S.E. outbreaks on Pa. producers. It's easier to blame approximately 1500 egg producers than police 30,000 restaurants in New York. Major egg producers, fearing lost business, urged state lawmakers to initiate an egg refrigeration law. (Since the initial bill was introduced, Salmonella has been found in many states and not only in eggs. A recent outbreak in cantaloupes has been reported and a traceback to humans was reported in New Jersey.) Does this mean eggs, cantaloupes and humans have to be refrigerated?!

No, the answer to healthy food products is proper handling, especially careful sanitation. That means wash your hands, wash your fruit, vegetables, eggs, meat, poultry and utensils and EDUCATE your customers and employees to do the same.

This exercise in government has been going on for more than a year, and it's been a real education for me. I've learned which organizations really care about the small farmer, who is in it to make a name for himself and the size people's egos can get when things get out of perspective.

When HB 175 first came to a vote in the House, common sense was initially used and the five-day amendment was approved through the efforts of Representatives Flick, Hershey, Barley and Godshall. But when the Democrats saw that the Republicans might get something approved in the House, a second vote was called and the vote went right down party lines and the five-day amendment was defeated.

However, Senators Helfrick, Wenger and Baker successfully convinced the Senate of the common sense of the five-day amendment and it passed 49-0. The bill then went back to the House for a consensus vote and again, Representatives Hershey, Flick and many others convinced their colleagues of this bill's importance and it finally passed 190-2.

If I learned anything from this experience it's the difference between the Pennsylvania Farmers Association (PFA) and the Pennsylvania Farmers Union (PFU). PFA supported the big producers and ignored my pleas for help by telling me "I don't have time for this." This was particularly upsetting to me since I've been a dues-paying PFA member. PFA staunchly supported the two-day rule until they saw the support the five-day amendment received in the Senate. They did an about-face and supported the five-day amendment when their "support" had become unnecessary.

I turned to Pennsylvania Farmers Union when PFA stated "they had no time" for me, the small producer. I explained the situation to PFU and told them I was a PFA member. Allen Deiter, President of PFU, said it didn't matter where I belonged but if one farmer needed help, then other family farmers would need help too and that's who PFU was there to support. Allen Deiter and John Hoffman, Executive Director of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation attended many meetings, wrote letters and contacted lawmakers on behalf of the small egg producers. These men are outstanding leaders of their respective organizations and certainly deserve the gratitude and respect of the industry.

I am especially disappointed and perplexed by the hostile attitude shown by the Pa. Department

PFU Members Seek Support In Washington

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — This past week Pennsylvania Farmers Union (PFU) members were in Washington, D.C., for several days seeking support from Congressmen for a sound dairy inventory management program — and an increase in the support price for milk.

The House Agriculture Committee voted to submit HR 2837 to the House; the Milk Inventory Management Act of 1991. Although this bill does not encompass all the proposals recommended by National Farmers Union and PFU it is an improvement over current law, according to PFU President Allen Deiter.

The testimony presented by Farmers Union at the hearings conducted by the House Sub Committee on Livestock, Dairy and Poultry requested a support price of $13.60 per cwt and a "Two Tier" payment plan.

Deiter said, that while the $12.60 in 1992-1993 (with reduction to $12.10 in 1994 and $11.60 in 1995) is a compromise from the $13.60, it is better then the $10.10 now in law.

"We will continue to work for improvements in the Senate and when the bill is debated and voted on in the full Congress," Deiter said.

"We believe a good sound dairy bill could return dairy farm income to a level that would enable many producers the ability to earn a return for their milk that covers their costs of production.

"Unfortunately, it is already too late for some. A 30 percent drop in income from last year was the straw that broke the camel's back," Deiter said.

"We cannot expect dairy farmers to survive these drastic price drops in dairy income. We must have a different dairy policy than the present one.

"We need stability in prices and supplies both from the producers and consumers standpoint," he said.

According to the PFU president, the current law did not prevent a 30-percent bust in milk prices to the producers with no corresponding drop in consumer prices. Nor is it likely to prevent a boom in milk prices to consumers, once enough dairy farmers have been forced out of business so that supplies tighten, he said.

"Help is needed from farm suppliers — such as machine, fertilizer, spray material dealers, seed salesmen, breeding co-ops, veterinarians and other various business including banks that are part of the rural economy — if we wish to have revitalization," Deiter said.

One of the arguments against HR 2837 is that the secretary of agriculture is threatening a Presidential veto.

Even a substitute containing a weaker program at a lower price did not draw an endorsement from the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) during the full committee's mark up session.

"The administration simply would prefer a policy of doing nothing, allowing thousands more dairy farmers to go out of business, and allowing volatile price swings to continue raising prices at the grocery store," Deiter said.

The 1990 farm bill required the agriculture secretary to analyze a variety of inventory management program options. After public input and months of review, the agency concluded that current policy is better than all of them.

"As taxpayers, consumers of dairy products, and especially as milk producers, PA Farmers union members disagree," Deiter said.

"We believe our trip to Washington made a difference. Because of the veto threat we compromised over position. I believe, however, that compromise is a two-way street and it appears we have had to do all the compromising; anymore would be surrender and we cannot surrender because of a veto threat."

Farmland Preserved

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.)— The Pennsylvania Agricultural Land Preservation Board moved to preserve 1,308 acres of farmland in the commonwealth, including the first easement purchase in York County.

Meeting near the site of Ag Progress Days, the largest display of agricultural science and technology in the Northeast, the board voted to purchase easements in Adams, Berks, and Bucks counties, as well as the 452-acre Downs Farm in Lower Chanceford Township, York County.

The Downs Farm is operated by Emery and Elaine Downs and their sons Michael and David. Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff, who chairs the board, said the Downs Farm is the largest farm protected by Pennsylvania's farmland protection program so far.

"Our program is up and running now, and we're ready to provide protection to more and more valuable farmland every time the state board meets," Wolff said.

Under the program, farmers can sell their development rights based on appraisals of their farms. The price per acre for the easement is the difference between appraisals as farmland and as development land.

Funds are allocated to counties based on development pressure, agricultural production, and county appropriations for farmland protection.

Wolff said the action brings the total number of acres preserved for agricultural use to 7,575. "We're pleased to ensure that the Downs Farm and others like it are maintained for agriculture, both now and in the future," Wolff said.

DeKalb Corn Research Center Plans Open House

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.)—DEKALB Plant Genetics Mid-Atlantic Corn Research Station in Manheim will hold an open house Sept. 4 from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. It is located at 423 S. Colebrook Rd., approximately ¼ mile south of Sporting Hill southwest of Manheim.

All farmers are invited to attend the event which will include a tour of the new facility, discussions about DEKALB's corn breeding efforts in the East and its worldwide biotechnology program. Last year DEKALB was the first major seed company to use gene transfer technology which allows scientists to incorporate specific traits into a corn plant.

DEKALB recently moved its research station from Palmyra to Manheim. The 90-acre site includes labs and test plots.

"The Mid-Atlantic region offers a number of unique challenges to the corn producer," says Dr. Erich Veitenheimer, Station Manager. "The cold, wet springs and hot, humid summers are environmental stresses which can lead to numerous root, foliar, stalk and ear diseases. At this station, we study how these factors affect corn and develop corn inbreds and hybrids specifically adapted to these demanding conditions. We think this research center will benefit all corn producers in the region."

DEKALB Plant Genetics, headquartered in DeKalb, Ill., is an international researcher, producer and marketer of hybrid corn, sorghum, sunflower and varietal soybean and alfalfa seed.

Seventeen-year-old Janelle Wivell took the supreme champion title of all animals at the Elizabethtown Fair with her Holstein, Kandy. "It's just what the industry is looking for. The three-year-old just drips milk and has an exceptionally good milking system," the judge said. The champion was bred and raised as a 4-H project on Donegal Creek Farms owned by Janelle's dad (Joe Wivell) of Columbia. Wivell said the cow had a record as a 2-year-old for producing more than 24,000 pounds, 950 pounds butterfat, and a 3.3 protein test. In the last three months, it has been producing more than 100 pounds of milk a day since freshning. "She has lots of potential," Wivell said. Kandy is classified at 87 points and will be used for embryo flushing in additional to a calf for the Wivell farm. Kandy has captured two other championships this year with wins as Junior champion at the Lancaster County Holstein Show and Junior Champion at the South Central Holstein Show in Shippensburg. Shown with Janelle are Frank Groff of Groff's Meats who provided the trophy and Elizabethtown Fair Queen Kelly Nolt. Photo by Lou Ann Good.

Brush, Roll Or Spray - We'll Do It Either Way
For Jobs Large Or Small - Our Men Will Do It All

WHY GROW WHEAT IF SPELTZ YIELDS 100 TO 150 BUSHELS PER ACRE - 100 IN THIS DRY YEAR, AND BRINGS 10¢ PER LB. BY THE SEMI-LOAD IF NON TOXIC? WHY KILL YOUR EARTHWORMS AND SOIL LIFE IF THEY WOULD HAVE GIVEN YOU MUCH FREE FERTILIZER OF THE BEST KIND, AND DISEASE RESISTANCE IF YOU WOULD HAVE LEFT THEM LIVE?

There is no excuse because our program produces better crops than the neighbors' - up to 250 and more bu. corn per acre, in Lebanon County, and 29% protein hay. The difference is greatest in a drought because our earthworms make the soil and subsoil spongy which holds more spring rains than a brick. Then when the drought comes, the moisture seeps up like a wick effect, and the roots can also go down thru the soft soil to meet it — a happy marriage! And the feed is so much better that the milk comes up and the problems go down.

Cysts and mastitis etc. are toxins giving a warning sign to eyes that see and a heart to understand.

We believe we have the best blend of organic fertilizer at only $154 per ton. It doesn't dissipate, therefore apply it in the fall to condition your precious soil ahead of planting time. Conditioning is the name of the game.

of Agriculture throughout this entire process. A great deal of scientific evidence was presented to the Dept. of Agriculture clearly proving that the five-day amendment would not be detrimental to public health. However, the Department of Agriculture, particularly former deputy secretary of agriculture Steve Crawford, and some people in DER fought the five-day amendment until the end. Why? Was it ego, or trying to make a name for oneself, or trying to score points for future promotions or possibly a run for political office? We'll probably never know why a simple thing like putting eggs in a refrigerator became such a point of contention.

If there is a moral to this year-long odyssey, it's that the small farmer must stand up for his or her own rights. If your organization isn't doing the job, then find one that will. Government regulators and some legislators care far more about their own agenda than they do about the small farmer. Get to know your legislators and don't be afraid to call them often. they're your best line of defense against some pretty bureaucrat who'd be more than willing to legislate your operation out of existence.

Agronomic Association On Capital Hill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The National Agricultural Chemicals Assn. (NACA) and The Fertilizer Institute (TFI) recently concluded a very successful Agri-Dealer Legislative Conference. In all, 300 delegates descended on Capital Hill from 33 states. Following a day of briefings, teams of delegates made 220 calls on members of congress to gain support for the industry's position on food safety, FIFRA preemption, the Clean Water Act reauthorization and two fertilizer issues.

The Pennsylvania delegation consisted of the eight people shown in the accompanying photograph. They worked in two separate groups to make their calls. In total the PA delegation called on the staff of both of PA's senators, 5 congressmen, and the Chief Administrator of ASCS. The PA delegation are all members of the Pennsylvania Agronomic Products Association (PAPA). PAPA is an affiliate member of both NACA and TFI.

Somerset Co. Hosts 39 In 4-H Exchange Program

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

NEW CENTERVILLE (Somerset Co.) — The 4-H Exchange week in Somerset County concluded its 15th season as the Minnesota participants and their host families held a farewell picnic recently.

It followed a day of whitewater rafting in the popular Youghiogheny (Yah-ka-gay-nee) River. They planned to head for Minnesota the next morning at 8 a.m.

"It's going to be hard to go back," said Heather Colbenson, a bubbling 16-year-old from Lewiston, Minn. She said she had fallen in love with Somerset County and wanted to stay. Her hosts were George and Audrey Stahl and daughter Vicki, 17, of Somerset.

According to the Stahls, Colbenson was up daily by 6 a.m. to help with milking chores and always forfeited breakfast. (It seems her Minnesota family never bothers with breakfast despite the fact they are farmers).

Lori Mickelson, 13, was from Lanesboro, Minn. She said she thought the people talked different here. (Pennsylvania Dutch influence perhaps?) Although she enjoyed her week and especially the day of rafting, Lori was feeling pangs of homesickness. Her host family was Mark and Martha Miller, near Boswell.

Chad Odegaard, 17, stayed at the dairy farm of Tim and Sue Clites, Berlin, where he enjoyed spending time with Scott Clites, 19. Odegaard said he liked the whitewater rafting best of all the activities. With plans to attend a technical college, Odegaard said he thinks he will always make his home in Minnesota.

Sharon Hrstka from Chatfield, Minn. was a group chaperone. Her son Steve, 16, was the guest of the David Welch family, Berlin, whose son, Matt, stayed with Hrstka's last year.

Hrstka, the guest of Harry and Virginia Rhoads, Berlin, explained that hers is a Bohemian name. She was brimming with observations about Somerset County and its people.

"We think differently," she said. "But underneath, we're all the same. Somerset County has done a terrific job," she commented about the planning done by the coordinators in the county extension office.

"I really hope Somerset County knows what they have in Bob (Antram) and Marie (Kieffer)." (Antram is the interim director of the Somerset County Extension service. Marie is the county home economist.)

Hrstka also spoke well of her own Minnesotans, saying there had been no problems for the four women chaperones with the group.

Another chaperone, Leona West, from Lewiston, Minn., stayed with Merle (Butch) and Peg Mostoller's family near Boswell.

Mostoller chauffered West around Somerset County, showing her the various area industries. They spent time at the Fayette County Fair and saw the play, "Oklahoma," at the Mountain Playhouse in Jennerstown. It was presented by professional actors from New York.

West said they had hoped to have at least one male chaperone for the journey, but all the men were committed to their farm work and couldn't risk getting behind.

As the only grandmother making the trip, West said she took some good-natured ribbing from the kids. Her response was; "4-H is for everyone."

Chaperone Linda Thill from Winoan, Minn. had a superb week with her hosts, David and Betty Lou Svonavec of Rockwood. It was filled with the making of wonderful memories. Admittedly, she agreed to chaperone the trip because she intended to visit "The Country Store" in Intercourse, Lancaster Co.

Thill says that from The Country Store had come the pattern she had used for her very first quilting project. Called "The Country Bride," Thill said it was her wedding present to her son and his wife for their recent marriage ceremony.

"I didn't think it would mean so much," she said, "but it was overwhelming." In fact, she said the pattern was on display while she was there.

At the invitation of David Svonavec, Thill experienced an adventure and a lesson about Pennsylvania coal strip mining. She said she knew about deep mining but had no concept of strip mining. From the rotating cabin of the awesome dragline he was operating for Svonavec, Inc., Rockwood, Svonavec pushed and pulled various levers to mechanically guide the high boom and steel cables. In response, the heavy steel-toothed bucket at the bottom of the cables could dig into the earth. Carefully, the top soil was removed, put aside, and saved. When the vein of coal was finally exposed, it was also dug and put at an appropriate place.

Thill was also educated in how the land is restored to a useful condition following strip mining. When the earth is leveled, the coal company is responsible for seeding it with grass, or perhaps, planting thousands of tree seedlings, whichever is the wish of the landowner. She says she was impressed.

From each stop made by Thill, she tried to keep a small rock from the ground. She says this is a tradition she follows when traveling.

Washington, D.C. was the destination of several persons coming to Somerset County. On one occasion, Jay and Yvonne Shaffer of Somerset motored to the area with three of the four chaperones. They said later that Jay is a history buff who made their journey interesting.

Other group activities saw the kids visiting the Johnstown Flood National Park site, Johnstown Incline Plane, The Somerset County Historical Center, and Seven Springs Resort. Clark Brocht, Rockwood, led a tour of the New Centerville Jubilee grounds where the annual Farmers and Threshermen's Jubilee will be held the first week in September. Here is an assortment of steam powered machinery, equipment, and operating motors.

Kids who segregated themselves by state in group play, whether volleyball or basketball teams, generally called themselves the Penns or the Minns, and claimed some reason for being better than the opponent.

Of these kids interviewed, most said that the rafting experience was what they found most fun during the week.

In response to some farewell words from Somerset County representatives, Hrstka told the gathered group how she had come to appreciate the local mountains. "I love the mountain air," she said. "If I get home and it's humid, I'll be right back."

With a volleyball net between them, 4-H exchange kids were challenging each other by state. Pennsylvania (Somerset Co.) is on the left and guests, Minnesotans are on the right.

Grandparents and Grandchildren
The Generation Connection

"Said the little boy, 'Sometimes I drop my spoon.'
Said the old man, 'I do that too.'
The little boy whispered, 'I wet my pants.'
'I do that too,' laughed the little old man.
Said the little boy, 'I often cry.'
The old man nodded, 'So do I.'
'But worst of all,' said the boy, 'it seems
Grown-ups don't pay attention to me.'
And he felt the warmth of a wrinkled old hand.
'I know what you mean,' said the little old man."

— Shel Silverstein

One grandmother-to-be explained it to her daughter this way, "Don't be jealous of the generation connection. It is an amazing truth that in spite of the enormous gap...from your child to me, it is a smaller gap than will grow between...you and your offspring."

The generation connection — grandparents and grandchildren — without even trying, they have a magical bond and a mystical understanding of each other.

In several weeks, card shops and florists will count on that bond to generate increased revenue as families celebrate Grandparents Day, but there are lots of ways that you, your children, and grandchildren can celebrate without the commercial expense.

The time you invest in this generation connection is truly an investment in the future.

Why? Because the 53 million grandparents in the United States can greatly influence today's youngest generation. This is a generation, according to the Children's Defense Fund, where one in four of our future leaders is poor, one in five is at risk of becoming a teen parent, one in six has no health insurance, one in two has a mother in the labor force, but only a minority has access to quality, affordable safe child care.

Faced with these odds, grandparents can, through that magical generation bond, do much to improve a child's and a community's chances of a bright future.

First, parenting specialists document that children who spend time with older people develop positive attitudes toward aging. (That's a good thing because we are all aging whether we admit it or not!)

Second, grandparents provide a more exciting view of history than textbooks do! As a family, you can begin "history lessons" by asking people to write things about a certain period of their lives. For instance, each person might describe life as a thirteen-year-old. Who was president? Where did you live? What important world events were taking place? What were you doing in school? What did you do to socialize with friends?

One of the stories I would tell would be about the TMI nuclear disaster.

Third, grandparents can help the future leaders by being available to listen and encourage. Just hearing someone say, "I know you can do it. You are so special to me." makes a big difference to a person's self-confidence.

Grandchildren, in return, don't forget to encourage your grandparents, too.

Sometimes just being together is special enough. You don't have to spend lots of money to go on outings. I used to do crossword puzzles with my grandmother. One of my committee members shared a Valentine from her granddaughter with me, "Roses are red, violets are blue, I like to hang out laundry especially with you!"

Give yourself full credit for the part you play in the generation connection.

If you'd like a few new ideas to keep you going, I suggest, playing dominoes or a board game. Grandparents, are you brave enough to let your grandchild teach you how to play a video game? Take a nature walk together. Wash the car. Allow your grandchild to read to you or tell you about awards he may have received recently. This is a great time to ask. Many kids get certificates at vacation Bible schools, ribbons at county fairs, and medals at summer playground programs.

I should temper these ideas with the reminder that grandchildren and grandparents need each other, but sometimes in different doses!

Both the young and the old need to reach to each other. It's a natural bridge, but it won't last without work.

In the end, though, children build a healthy life view and grandparents gain a sense of completion. It's not a bad trade. Josephine Buono said, "If you share your todays with me, I'll share my yesterdays with you, and we'll both be the richer tomorrow."

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

More information passes daily across our office desks and kitchen table than we can ever hope to - or might even want to - digest.

And, rarely a day goes by that some item of interest isn't saved for sharing with family and friends.

Two items in particular have hung around the desk recently, sort of haunting my thoughts. They seem related, but I can't figure out exactly why.

Information that reproductions of feedbag materials are now being sold really brought a smile and a rush of memories.

Feedbag fabric. Somewhere upstairs in the stack of fabric yardages accumulated over the years are, I think, a couple of lengths of the original stuff.

Today most poultry and livestock feeds are handled in bulk, blown into bins by trucks using a sort of reverse vacuum cleaner blower system. What small volumes we do use in bags are for young stock. Some of the bags are what I call "plastic burlap," literally woven plastic threads. Other feed comes in heavy paper bags with an inner liner of thin plastic for moisture resistance.

Neither would make suitable garment fabric. Or quilts. Or tablecloths. Or pillowcases or teatowels or aprons or any of the numerous items that our thrifty foremothers created from the sturdy printed cotton sacks in which feed was sold.

The Farmer says only chicken feed came to their farm in printed sacks. And he can still recall the stack of opened, washed and neatly-folded feedsack lengths stored for future use. When an item was to be made from the fabric, it was first necessary to check if enough lengths of the desired print were on hand in the stack.

Feedbag patterns I vaguely recall were of small, calico-like design, mostly in pastels. No neon yellows, fire-engine reds or stylish blacks.

And yet, reproductions of those feedbags are reported selling at "country" boutiques in the six-to-eight dollar range. Probably could have gotten two or three bags - full of feed - at that price. And, each bag has only about a yard of fabric. You can't make much of a garment with one yard.

A feedbag mini-sirt, maybe?

The second item deals with a far more serious, saddening subject. It's a letter to the editor of a regional farm publication addressing the issue of farmers applying for food stamps. Source of the letter was the administrator of USDA's Food and Nutrition Service.

Apparently a question on the eligibility of farmers to participate in the Food Stamp program was raised at the annual Farm Women's Forum held a few months ago in Washington, D.C. The concern raised was that farm families were being denied access to the program due to high levels of farm assets.

This rules clarification letter stated that, under Food Stamp program regulations, property essential to farming, like livestock and equipment, are excluded in determining eligibility. However, personal resources, such as vehicles not essential to the farm, would affect eligibility. Officials want to know if indeed there have been cases of farm assets being used against farm family eligibility for this national feeding program.

I am saddened . . . dismayed with the thought that cash flow on America's farms has reached a point that would cause this issue to be raised at a national gathering of farm women.

If farmers can't feed their own families, how long can agriculture as an industry continue to feed the country?

Upscale shoppers can purchase feedbag fabric reproductions while some farm families may have found it necessary to seek help to put food on their tables.

Again - somehow these two items seem oddly related. Perhaps you, friends, can make some sense of them.

I still haven't.

1991 BARN PAINTING
Aim For The Best - In Coating Film Thickness
To do it right use the finest kind of bristle brush evening out the coating into a film thickness that does not peel in normal moisture stress (found on most barn siding from outside and inside by livestock or stored animal feed)
1. PREPARATION. Peeling old coatings (improperly brushed) needs to be removed. The best method is simply water blasting or power washing! High volume of water - medium pressure is best! Done professionally or do it yourself, especially on the easy to reach areas This is resurfacing!!!
2. BEST NEW START ON RESURFACED WOOD SIDING After spraying on this kind of barn paint or stain, take time to pay attention to brush out in all directions to create a film thickness that will prevent future peeling & resurfacing costs & effort This film will let excess moisture breathe through it Depending on the amount of weather wear it can be recoated lightly in 10-15 years Southern exposures usually wear faster.

Bidders Pay For Fat, Cholesterol

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Despite drought conditions in Bedford County (severe in some parts) the annual 4-H bake sale at the Bedford Fair came close to matching last year's record-breaking sale.

The sale features the baked goods entries at the Bedford Fair including both junior and senior divisions. All proceeds go towards improvements to the 4-H barn now a decade old.

It was an idea that originated about seven years ago and has been steadily growing at the fair. "The only complaint we have," said one 4-H leader, "is that band night competes with our crowd."

Some familiar faces are always on hand to keep the bidding interesting. Faces like that of Andy Roberts from Sarasota, Florida. Roberts has a candied apple stand on the midway and comes each year with a full wallet to keep the bidding climbing.

This year, he paid the highest price ($50) for a cake bowl - an assortment of fruit shaped cakes in a bowl-baked by Charlotte Baumgardner of New Paris.

Next to the cake, fudge and pies were the money getters at the Fair auction. Auctioneers Stanley Claycomb and Linda Hooper joked throughout the evening about, "needing more fudge."

Even a plate of melted fudge brought $3. All others went for $10 to $12.

One peach pie sold for $21 while another brought $15. A raspberry pie was bid to $12, and most other pies sold for $10 to $12.

A mouth-watering Hershey's meltaway chocolate and peanut butter cake brought $17 and a "best of show" chocolate cake sold for $25. That cake was also baked by Charlotte Baumgardner.

While a Desert Storm cake was a real conversation piece, it only added $10 to the coffers. The cake was iced in a coffee colored icing and sprinkled with candied sugar which resembled sand. It came complete with miniature soldiers painted in camouflaged colors and flags of the allied nations from the "Operation Desert Storm" surrounded the cake.

The Desert Storm cake was a real conversation piece.

Dr. Eric Weaverling from Pleasantville is always a hit of the fair. His total purchases amounted to $46 for a scrumptious pile of goodies. As a medical doctor, he quipped that, "I am not paying for fat or cholesterol."

Actually his goodies are donated to the hard working young people in the FFA and 4-H barns located directly behind the 4-H building. It's a tradition he set when the sale started.

Dr. Weaverling was, as a youth, a grand champion winner at the fair.

The sale has grown from a several hundred dollar profit maker to nearing the $900 mark. Last year, the total was $896.75 while this year it was down slightly to $852.75.

Auctioneer Stanley Claycomb asks for more money for a blue ribbon pie being held by Karen Brothers, an active 4-H member.

Dr. Eric Weaverling lets his son do the bidding. He donates all of his purchases to the young people in the cattle barns.

Hard To Get The Iron You Need?

Eighteen milligrams of iron is a lot of iron. It's a bit more than the recommended daily amount for women, which is 15 mg. Eighteen is how much a bowl of Total cereal contains. Eat that bowl and you've got it for the day right?

Wrong. Even under ideal circumstances with plenty of Vitamin C present, only 5% — or 0.9 mg. — of that will be absorbed by your body. Now, the scientists who came up with the RDA for iron expect that you'll only absorb around 10% of the iron you eat in a day.

Eat that bowl of Total and you're halfway toward getting your iron for the day — under ideal circumstances.

But none of us live under those conditions. A single cup of tea can wipe out half the absorbable iron in that bowl of cereal — bringing it down to 0.45 mg. of absorbed iron.

Eat 3 oz. of lean beef later on in the day, and you're only adding 0.27 mg. of iron. So you may have to eat a lot of iron during the day to absorb the amount you need.

The good thing about meat (or "heme") sources of iron, by the way, is that nothing else in your diet will affect their absorption But a healthy diet can't be all that meat-heavy, so your best course of action would be to:

1. Make sure that you include foods at each meal that will help you absorb more iron — vitamin C and/or fish, poultry or red meat.

2. Maximize the positives and minimize the negatives at each meal. Don't stop eating fiber and calcium because they inhibit iron absorption, but space them out so that you don't eat your high-fiber sources at the same meal with your high-iron sources. Be aware of the following iron inhibitors, and space them throughout the day so that they interfere the least with iron absorption:

- Calcium phosphate, added to foods and present in milk products.
- Oxalates, organic acids that naturally occur in spinach, rhubarb, chocolate, and other foods.
- Tannins and polyphenols, found in tea and coffee.
- Antacids, which reduce gastric activity, decreasing iron absorption.
- Fiber in fruits, vegetables, and grains.

"Ten thousand bears can't be wrong," Pennsylvania Honey Queen Holly Fisher told visitors during Ag Progress days.

As if that wasn't enough to convince people that honey is good for you, the state Honey Queen and her family cooked batches of honey waffles topped with honey ice cream or honey-nut topping to show the public how delicious honey tastes.

Holly is the 19-year-old daughter of W. Dyson and Linda R. Fisher of McVeytown, Mifflin County. The Fisher family have been commercial beekeepers for 50 years.

Holly graduated with honors from Mount Union High School and from South Hills Business School in State College.

If you'd like to try using honey, but need recipes, you may request a brochure of honey recipes from the Honey Queen. She won first prize in a national contest for the Honey Peanut Butter Cookie recipes that is included. Write: PA State Beekeepers Association, R.D. 1, Box 315, Canton, PA 17724.

If you missed the waffles at Ag Progress, try them at home with these recipes from Holly.

IT'S TIME TO ENJOY FRESH PEARS

Bartlett pears, the earliest of the pear varieties, are ready and waiting for eating enjoyment. Bartlett pears have a smooth green skin that turns a clear bright yellow with an occasional slight red blush when ripe. They have a rich, fruity taste. They are excellent for eating fresh. They also hold their shape when baked, poached or canned.

Another common pear, the Bosc, will begin to ripen in September. They have a greenish-yellow skin overlaid completely with a cinnamon-colored russet. The Bosc is firm, juicy and has a slightly granular flesh texture. They are long-necked and large-sized. The Bosc is excellent for baking and cooking.

Purchasing Tips

Select firm fruit with no decay or bruises, with good color for the variety. Pears are one of the few fruits that are harvested before they are ripe. They achieve their flavor when ripened off the tree. Surface blemishes and russeting are natural for some varieties and do not affect their quality. Three to four medium pears equals one pound. One pound yields about two cups sliced or one pint frozen pears.

Storage Tips

To ripen pears, store at room temperature in a paper bag or fruit ripening bowl until they yield to gentle pressure at the stem end. This is the point when the pear is juciest. Do not ripen so that the whole pear feels soft. Once ripe, use right away or refrigerate for a few days.

Preparation Tips

For best flavor and texture, eat fully ripe pears, but use firm and slightly under-ripe pears for cooking. Pears darken quickly when the cut surface is exposed to air. To prevent this, soak slices for five minutes in one quart of water with three tablespoon of bottled lemon juice and two crushed 500-milligram Vitamin C tablets.

How To Preserve

Bartlett pears are considered the best variety for preserving. Wash and peel pears. Cut lengthwise in halves and remove core. A mellon baller or metal measuring spoon is suitable for coring pears. To prevent discoloration, keep peeled fruit in water with Vitamin C made by mixing one teaspoon of crystalline ascorbic acid, or six 500-milligram Vitamin C tablets, in one gallon of water.

To freeze pears, mix 2-1/2 cups granulated sugar and 1/2 teaspoon crystalline ascorbic acid or three 500-milligram Vitamin C tablets in four cups of water. Add one cup of syrup per quart of prepared fruit. To make a dry pack, mix 1/2 cup dry sugar per quart of prepared fruit. Package in moisture-vapor-proof containers. Date, label and freeze.

To can pears a light syrup is recommended. To make a light syrup, mix and dissolve 2-1/4 cups sugar in nine cups water. Place drained pears in boiling syrup and boil for five minutes. Fill clean jars with hot fruit and syrup, leaving a 1/2-inch headspace. Wipe sealing edge of jars with clean, damp paper towel. Add lids and tighten screw bands. You may process jars in a boiling water or a pressure canner.

To process in a boiling water canner, preheat canner half filled with water to 180 degrees F. Load sealed jars into the canner rack and lower with handles; or load one jar at a time with a jar lifter onto rack in canner. Add water, if needed, to a level of one-inch above jars. When water boils vigorously, lower heat to maintain a gentle boil and process pints for 20 minutes and quarts for 25 minutes.

To process in a pressure canner, place jar rack, two inches of water, and jars in canner. Process pints or quarts for 10 minutes at six pounds pressure.

Kid's Korner

What Do Kids Do At Ag Progress Days?

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

What do kids do when they visit Ag Progress held each year in August?

Test candy, listen to bugs talk, pet snakes, and a whole lot of other unusual things.

Thousands of kids visited the entomology exhibit to learn about insects and food.

"Ask the caterpillar what he likes to eat," the instructor told those who visited the exhibit.

The children discovered that the caterpillars answered by eating their favorite leaf. Three identical-looking leaves were given to the caterpillar. But the caterpillar rejected two of the leaves and quickly gobbled the third one.

"The activity teaches that insects select what they want to eat on the basis of taste, and it shows how to measure and study this phenomenon," said James Frazier, Penn State professor of entomology.

Experiments like these help scientists deal with pest insects. They can discourage insects from damaging crops by altering the taste of the plants. Or, they can entice bad insects to eat sprays that will kill them.

Visitors at Ag Progress also discovered that they eat with their eyes. The test worked like this. Three colors of candy were available. When people eat red candy, they expect it to have a cherry flavor; green candy to have a mint flavor, and yellow to taste lemon-flavored. But the trick was that these candies did not have the flavors usually associated with these colors. When most people picked up a piece of candy, they could not figure out what flavor it was because their mind told them a different story. If they did not look at the color of candy, they could guess it from taste because their mind wasn't telling them a different message.

The food at Ag Progress wasn't on trick food. There were all kinds of food like that found at fairs. Children ate as they walked, sat at tables and benches or found a grassy spot to enjoy the food.

Although it was hot outside, visitors could cool off by taking a stroll through the forest. The trail did not lead through an actual forest, but through a slice of it that had been set up inside the building. Hidden among the tall pines and brush were a fox, deer, and many birds. Actually, the animals and birds were not alive, but they looked it because they were stuffed.

Horse events were held in the outdoor arena. Therapeutic riding, a drill team performance, and demonstrations by 4-H riding champions, and draft horse and miniature horse exhibitions were held on August 14.

Like many of the visitors to Ag Progress, these cousins found a grassy spot to enjoy their lunch. From left: Carolyn Martin, 9; Matthew Martin, 4; Carla Martin, 4; Rhonda Martin, 1; Renae Martin, 12; and Karen Martin, 12. The children's fathers are Lewis Martin, Lebanon, and Elvin Martin, Lancaster.

Owls are rehabilitated and released back to their natural habitate unless permanently handicapped such as this Red Tail Hawk. John Drummond said that when Saver's Creek Environmental Center found it 12 years ago, the bird had a shot gun pellet lodged in its head. The bird is permanently blind so it cannot be released but is used to educate people about need for hawks and owls that help farmers by eating rodents and large insects.

At the Pennsylvania forestry exhibit, Chuckie Gale, 7; Heather Straich, 6; and Mary Faith Gale, 4; find the fox hidden in the brush.

At the booth called The Food Science, Imagination and Consumer Opinions Lead to New Product Development, candy was handed out to visitors, but the appearance was deceiving since the red-colored candy was actually lime flavored, and the yellow was cherry flavored. Only a handful of people could identify the flavor of candy they tasted when they saw it ahead of time, but if they did not see the candy they popped into their mouth, they could easily identify it. This experiment proves that people eat with their eyes. If they expect food to have a certain flavor, and it doesn't, it's hard to identify it.

"They feel neat," said Carrie Gale, 11, from State College, and Jessica Hycorn, 3, from Garret, Md., who pet turtles displayed at the Shaver's Creek Environmental Center exhibit.

Even babies enjoy food served at Ag Progress. Marianne Hoover, 10 months, daughter of Edwin and Mary Hoover of Womelsdorf, is held by her cousin Esther Mae Hoover, 14, Bethel, while another cousin looks on.

The judges decided otherwise but for Krystal Yoder, 7, vanilla ice cream was her top choice in the churn-off contest.

Bob Berkheimer points toward the development that surrounds his 230 acres of farmland. During the time the Berkheimer Farm has been in the family for 100 years, community changes have occured.

Berkheimer Specializes In Neighborhood PR

BETH WHITMAN PITZER
Cumberland Co. Correspondent

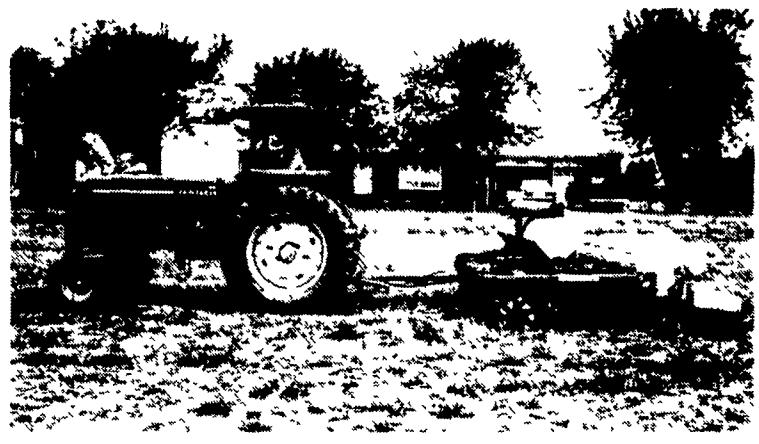
MONROE (Cumberland Co.) — March 30, marked the one-hundredth anniversary of the Berkheimer Farm located in Monroe Township, Cumberland County. In 1971, Bob and his son Mike began a legal partnership. In 1983, they bought 152 acres from two neighboring farms for more than $3,000 an acre. The motivation was so the land wouldn't be developed.

The dairy farm has seen a lot of changes in the last 100 years. One of the most visible changes is the abundance of suburban housing surrounding the farm that began in the early 1970's. Two-hundred and thirty acres of family farmland are bordered by busy roads and suburbia. It takes good public relations to farm productively in these surroundings. Bob shares some of the experiences he has had and both advantages and disadvantages of living in the area.

The farm features 180 dairy cows and 180 replacement heifers. The Berkheimers grow 300 acres of corn, 150 acres of alfalfa, and 50 acres of wheat for the Dairy Cows. In some cases, suburban neighbors have been supportive of the farm. For example, three years ago a hearing was held. The issue was to place 2,230 acres of land in an Ag security Area. All of the testimonies from suburban neighbors were in favor of it. There was no opposition.

He feels suburban neighbors reap some benefits living next to agricultural land. A few years ago he seeded a baseball field for the Monroe Acres Little League Field. Living so close to a farm also makes people aware of some of the challenges of farming and the fact that farmers are at the mercy of nature. He feels they appreciate the value of the food supply more. Sometimes Mother Nature has put him in situations where people are very aware of the neighboring farm. Recently during a rain storm, fierce wind blew fodder out of the field, across Williams Grove Road, and into neighboring backyards. He spent most of the next day cleaning up. People were appreciative and helpful during the clean-up.

The challenges of farming so close to people are many. Insecticides and herbicides needed for crops are now next to over 130 homes, lawns and gardens. There are challenges with the timing of manure spreading. Since Bob lives west of the Mechanicsburg community, he tries to spread the manure when the wind isn't blowing strongly from the west. He also tries to work with it right before a rainfall to avoid the odor from spreading. His underlying principle is to try to live in peace with his neighbors.



Farming so close to surburbia can cause problems, but Bob Berkheimer takes the challenge in stride by working on good relationships with his neighbors.

The increase in traffic on roads bordering different fields of the farm makes it difficult to get there. There are other challenges as well. There have been problems with kids in corn fields, dirt bikes, cans, and pieces of motorcycles that puncture tires of farm equipment. Bob tries to find a peaceful solution for every situation. A common problem is that neighbors throw their grass clippings into the field. When he finds these surprises, Bob encourages neighbors to place them on the manure pile in the barn if they want to discard them. Some neighbors do.

All of the building might bring thoughts to mind of moving further into the country. But Bob likes living and farming in the Williams Grove Area. He finds the annual rainfall good — there hasn't been a serious drought in over 60 years. He attributes this to the annual rain from the Great Lakes and what a unique geographical feature that is for the United States. The soil is also very fetile. In fact, one-half of prime Ag land is in eight counties in the Capital Region. In order to retain this land, he feels sizable acerage is needed.

In 1969 Governor Shaefer started the idea of preserving Agricultural land. Bob had hoped for $25 million until it was revoked. Recently Governor Casey offered $100 million as a one-shot deal. Bob wishes it cold be a continual line item every year. Bob Berkheimer is skilled not only as a farmer, but also in the public relations needed to work cooperatively with his suburban neighbors.

Mohrsville Couple Churn Their Way To $300 Prize

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

Churning pays off for Connie Troutman who won the top prize of $300 at the ice cream churn-off contest held at Ag Progress this year. In January, at the Pennsylvania Farm Show, she placed second with her vanilla ice cream. This year, her fresh peach ice cream topped the eight entries.

"I practiced with seven batches to get just the right taste using in-season peaches," said Connie whose husband Scott and 3-year-old son Jason assisted in the churning.

Harold F. Geise of Watsontown placed second with Golden Decadence, and won a $200 prize. Third prize of $100 went to Jim and Faye Reisinger of Loysville for their raspberry ice cream. Fourth prize was won by last year's champion Jim Harper of PA Furnace, for peanut butter chocolate flake ice cream.

The contest, held August 14, at 1 p.m., was limited to the first eight people that pre-registered for the event.

"What do you think? Do you think it is finished?" Dan Love, left, consults with a team member. The team made grapenut ice cream.

With their fresh peach ice cream, Scott and Connie Troutman and 3-year-old son Jason, kneeling, churned their way to the $300 first prize in the Ice Cream Churn-Off contest held annually at Ag Progress. Other contestants include: second row, contestant Elsie Smith, Roaring Spring, her husband and grandchildren; third row, contestant Brenda Ghaner of Port Matilda; fourth row from left, contestants Jim Harper, Faye and Jim Reisinger, Loystville; John Hess and Shawn Haldeman, Manheim; Dan Love, East Waterford; and Harold Geist, Watsontown.

Judges were Tom Palchak, manager of Penn State Creamry; Andrew Schmidt, former member of the Penn State Dairy Foods Judging Team; and Mary Beth Landis, Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess.

During the churn-off, Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Kristin Mentzker, who emceed the event, told the audience that Pennsylvania ranks second in the nation for the production of ice cream and ice milk ice cream. At $160 million, ice cream production plays a big part in Pennsylvania's economy.

The contest highlights the ice cream industry and provides new recipes that are distributed for consumer use. Already the first prize winner is looking forward to the next ice cream competition. She plans to use her prize money to develop an even better recipe. There is plenty of milk on her Mohrsville dairy farm for Connie to experiment with. The Troutmans milk 110 Holsteins in partnership with Connie's parents, Elwood and Ruth Ohlinger.

"We have a really smooth ice cream that can be changed to a different flavor for the next contest," Connie promises.

The contest is sponsored by American Dairy Associaiton, Dairy Council, the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association, and Mid-East United Dairy Industry Assocaiton and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program.

Here are the top winners' recipes. For a brochure of all the recipe entries, write to PDPP, 2301 N. Cameron St., Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408.

These kids helped their grandmother Elsie Smith of Roaring Spring churn ice cream during the ice cream churn-off contest held during Ag Progress.

Kristin Mentzker holds the microphone while champion ice cream maker Connie Troutman tells the audience that she plans to use her $300 prize money to develop another prize-winning ice cream. Seated on left are judges Tom Palchak and Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess Mary Beth Landis.

FRESH PEACH ICE CREAM

2 cups sugar
½ cup cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
4 pasteurized processed egg yolks
1 package unflavored gelatin

Cook one minute. Remove from heat, add gelatin that has been soaked in 3 tablespoons cold milk. Mix well, cool, then add cream, vanilla and well beaten egg whites. Let mixture get cold before putting in freezer. Just before freezing, add peaches. (Makes 4 quarts).

RASPBERRY ICE CREAM

1 quart raspberry juice
1¼ cups sugar

Mix juice and sugar together and let stand 10 to 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add more sugar if necessary.

4 pasteurized processed eggs
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 can sweetened condensed milk
1 tablespoon vanilla
1 cup milk
2 cups heavy cream

Beat eggs for two to three minutes. Add sugar and salt and continue beating a couple more minutes. Add vanilla, sweetened condensed milk and whole milk. Beat until well blended. Add raspberry juice and mix through. By hand, stir in ice cream. Makes 4 quarts.

GOLDEN DECADENCE

15-ounces white chocolate, coarsely chopped
4-ounces almonds, chopped
5-ounces shredded coconut
14-ounces sweetened condensed milk
2 12-ounce cans evaporated milk
8.5-ounces instant vanilla pudding
6 pasteurized processed egg yolks
2 teaspoons vanilla
1 quart cream
1 cup milk

Preheat oven to 300 degrees. Spread the chopped almonds on a cookie sheet and the coconut on another cookie sheet. Place in the oven and stir occasionally until golden brown (approximately 10 minutes). Bring two cups of cream to a boil. Remove from heat and add 10 ounces of the chopped white chocolate. Stir occasionally until the chocolate is melted. Combine chocolate mixture, remaining cream, milk, egg yolks, sweetened condensed milk, evaporated milk, instant pudding and vanilla. Place in ice cream freezer and freeze until set. Add the remaining white chocolate along with the toasted almonds and coconut to the ice cream mixture. Continue freezing until hard.

'Meating Place' Offers Cooking Ideas

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — If you want to cut down on fat, but you love meat — don't despair. The Meating Place shared secrets for making low-fat meats more flavorable during seminars held every two hours during Ag Progress Days.

"The problem with using low-fat ground beef is that it often tastes rubbery in texture and loses its juiciness and flavor," said Dr. William Henning, assistant professor of animal science at Penn State.

Researches are experiementing with different types of cooking and ways to add flavor to make low-fat meat more taste appealing. Three of those methods were used in grilling low-fat beef patties, and visitors at the seminar got to taste-test the difference.

For the test, one batch of patties were low-fat ground beef, another used the same meat but carrageen was added, and to another batch oat bran was added.

Carrageen is actually sea weed that is used in numerous foods as a suspending agent. (For years, it has been used in chocolate milk to keep the chocolate from settling on the bottom). Researchers find that carrageen holds water in meat while cooking, resulting in juicier burgers.

A small amount of oat bran added to the meat also helps retain liquid in the burgers to keep them juicier.

Only a small amount of carrageen or oat bran is needed. The demonstrators added a half pound of oat bran to 100 pounds of meat. This can be duplicated at home by adding oat bran dissolved in water. Use about 2½ percent oat bran to ground meat.

The burgers were grilled over medium heat for 8 to 10 minutes. Lisa Miller, who helped with the demonstration and who is a home economist for the PA Beef Council, said one way to tell when burgers should be flipped is when they look like they are bleeding on top.

When the burgers were cooked, the audience taste-tested them. No one preferred the plain low-fat patties. Carageen and oat bran patties scored about tie in one session, but generally the oat bran version wins.

Microwave cooking

With today's emphasizes on quick low-fat meals, chef's prime, a roast cut from the rib end of loin, and placed in a cooking bag in a microwave allows the meat to cook quickly and remain tender and moist. To begin, rub crushed garlic, rosemary, pepper and onion salt on the roast. The cooking bag is loosely tied and holes are poked near the top so the air can escape but not the juices. Place the roast in the microwave at 30 to 50 percent power for 20 to 25 minutes for a one-pound roast.

"Don't cook pork until well done," Miller instructed. It should be medium done, still slightly pink in the center until it reaches 160 degrees.

Stir fry cooking

The leanest and most tender cut of pork is pork tenderloin. It has fewer calories than chicken breast. Pork tenderloin is a good choice for stir frying. Thin strips should be cut in marinated in your favorite lime or lemon juice or a wine mixture.

Pour about one tablespoon of cold oil in a hot wok or skillet. "Hot wok, cold oil, food no stick," is a proverb that Miller learned from a Chinese cook.

Quickly brown the tenderloin until it is no longer pink. Dump a mixture of frozen vegetables into the skillet or wok and stir until crisp tender. Season with teriyaki sauce, and ginger.

Lancaster Society 19

Farm Women's Society 19 met August 10 at Hempfield Church of the Brethren with Hazel Newcomer serving as hostess. President, Esther Landis, stated that members will celebrate Farm Women's Day at a 6:00 P.M. dinner at General Sutter Inn in Lititz on October 14.

For the program, members had an auction. Each brought a pound package. Betty Saylor served as auctioneer. The proceeds will be used for some charitable purpose.

On September 14, the group will meet at the home of hostess, Vivian Warfel. The program titled "Crafts and Talents" promises to be challenging.

Lancaster Society 25

Lancaster Society 25 met at the home of Mrs. John B. Metz, Conestoga, for the August meeting. Eleven answered roll call by telling about their favorite winter project. The program included fun and games, and an ice cream social.

The next meeting will be at Willow Valley Conference Center, Robert Fulton Room, on September 14 at 5 p.m. Richard Warren will show slides of covered bridges.

Berks Society 4

Berks County Society of Farm Women Group 4 had an all day August meeting when they traveled to the home of Verna Taylor near Loysville in Perry County.

Mrs. Taylor told the group of the box huckleberry colony in Perry County, which botanists claim to be the worlds oldest living, approximately 13,000 year plant. It is located in the Hoverter and Sholl Box Huckleberry National Area of the Tuscarora State Forest near New Bloomfield. The plant is on the endangered wildlife plant list.

A picnic lunch and games were enjoyed by all.

The next meeting will be at the Boyertown RD 4 home of Ferne Kulp. The program will be about something members collect as a hobby.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Can you believe it, I almost forgot to write this article! As I was picking lima beans on Friday the thought struck me — did I write for Lancaster Farming on Wednesday morning? I remembered writing for Intercourse News, a tourist newspaper, Tuesday morning when my husband and his three brothers went to Ag Progress Days. That was a feat in itself as they live in three different counties.

So I hurried in to the house and looked at my diary. It didn't mention writing. It mentioned what I had gathered from the garden - tomatoes, squash, watermelon, cantaloupes and beans. Also that day I hoed my row of new strawberry plants and froze some peach slices.

In the afternoon I drove my husband to a paint store to buy a stain and wood finisher to do the trim around the doors and windows of the new house. Allen has a cataract and so I do most of the driving. That same afternoon I went to the grocery store and lamented the fact that the bill was so large due to non-food items. Health products, paper products and cleaning supplies all seem necessary. Sometimes I used flowered note paper for an anniversary or a birthday instead of an expensive greeting card.

The diary also mentions that my husband bagged some sand for future use and that the carpenters put down the dining room floor.

But the wonderful clumax tot he day was the inch of rain that we received. I had just carried sprinkling cans of water to my flowers and to a row ov Chinese cabbage that had recently been planted. Now nature was doing a much better job than I ever could. Maybe the cucumbers will start bearing again and I will can some more.

The Gehl Scavenger® II is the "original" V-Tank spreader and still the best. It delivers outstanding performance in all types of manure, from liquid to semi-solid to pen-packed or even frozen manure

- Patented square-tube auger - Hydraulically powers up and down to break up solid material
- Variflo discharge - Spreads smoothly and evenly for complete application control
- Five models - From 192 to 596 bushel heaped capacities to match your operation

- Options include - Truck-mounted units and hydraulic lids

If you handle mostly solid manure, a Gehl box spreader has the performance features you want at a price you'll appreciate. Features include special Gehl-Tuff flooring that prevents the apron from freezing to the floor and lets manure slide out with little resistance; 12-gauge, corrosion-resistant GEHL STEEL sides for strength and endurance; wide-spread beater paddles for wide, even spreads; constant velocity pto; and a standard two-speed worm drive transmission. Add a 10-year warranty on the floor and sides and you have an unbeatable package available only from your Gehl dealer.

Antique Specialist Breathes ...

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

WELLSVILLE (York Co.) — Harlen Anderson has done what lots of folks wish to do, but relatively few succeed in accomplishing.

He's turned what began as a hobby into a full-time career.

Anderson repairs tractors at his Anderson Repair Shop in the village of Kralltown. Actually, he doesn't just repair tractors. He rebuilds, restores, repaints, rejuvenates, resells - and retains a few for his own extensive collection.

Harlen Anderson is a specialist. And what he specializes in are antique John Deere models, the two-cylinder-engine types eagerly snatched up by collectors as well as farmers still relying on these sturdy work-horse tractors.

"I think I breathe John Deere green," chuckles the Wellsville R1 restoration specialist, who estimates he has "turned over" more than 450 of the two-cylinder classics in some 25 years of "fooling" with them.

Born just a short distance from his present home on the edge of the village of Kralltown, Anderson's father was a carpenter-contractor who also farmed a few acres of crops and raised some livestock. His dad's tractor, a 1947 model H John Deere, holds a special place of honor now in Anderson's collection of 45 antiques and classics.

Anderson's first brush with tractor mechanics came at about age 15, when he helped repair a transmission on a John Deere at his cousin's farm. He had begun helping out there when he was just eight years old.

But it was his father-in-law who really helped Anderson get "bitten" by the antique bug, at an antique and steam tractor show held annually in nearby Williams Grove park.

"I got started by going with him to the shows at Williams Grove. He took tractors there; I liked them and thought I'd like to own one. I bought my first one from him," he relates.

"It got to be like a fever," confesses this collector. "At first I bought one a year; then it got to be two and three a year."

Actually only 38 of those are a permanent collection, he says, with the other seven available for sale. In his collection, Anderson has several complete series of John Deere models.

His oldest are the "letter" series, including the models M, H, B, A, G, and R, the last and largest of those an early diesel model. The Harlan Anderson is a specialist in restoring antique John Deer models, the two-cylinder engine types eagerly snatched up by collectors as well as farmers still relying on these sturdy work-horse tractors.

M through R series was manufactured from 1949 through 1953.

Included an Anderson's complete series of the 1952-55 models 40 through 80 is one of what this expert considers John Deere's biggest seller ever- the "60" model.

"I've probably sold 60 or 70 of those over the years," he figures, of the long-time popular machine, remembered by many for its hand-clutching mechanism.

His collection of the "20s" series includes one of each, from the 520 model through 820, made from 1956 to 1958. Of the "30s" series which followed from 1959 through 1961, Anderson currently

LEADERSHIP AT WORK®

...the John Deere Green

Anderson's permanent collection includes several complete series of John Deere models.

owns only a 630 and a 730 model. Completing that series is one of his eventual goals.

As Anderson's mechanical and restoration abilities became known, other collectors and area farmers who use their two-cylinder tractors for production purposes began calling on his expertise.

Today, he not only repairs and restores at his Kralltown shop, but Anderson makes "house calls" to work on ailing two-cylinders. Most of his customers are in his northern York County neighborhood, but some live as far away as northern Maryland.

While he does some occasional repairs on newer model tractors, Anderson says he hasn't been able to keep up with the "know how" and changing tools necessary for working on recent models with increasingly computerized engines.

Replacement parts, according to Anderson, are still readily available from the John Deere company for many of these two-cylinder traditionals. He works closely with Finch Services of Hanover for his parts needs and they occasionally call or refer him for work on the two-cylinder types.

Even with a comfortable shop in which to handle his repair and restoration work. Anderson prefers the better natural light afforded by the outdoors.

"I'd rather work outside, even in winter," he says, adding with a chuckle, "People go past and see me out working on tractors in the cold- and think I'm nuts."

Many of the tractors in Anderson's collection were purchased by him a number of years ago. "They're weren't so expensive then as they are now," he adds.

Some of today's buyers of the vintage models do continue to use them for farm work, but Anderson believes collectors now buy up most of them. A lot, he says, are still available in this area, but quite a few, especially larger models, are being hauled here for sale from the West.

Most of Anderson's tractors are acquired by word-of-mouth and private calls, and a few through public sales. He continues to purchase tractors on a regular basis, often buying in the fall models than can be worked on through winter's less hectic repair season. Those are ready for spring customers, including some who have come from as far away as Wisconsin for Anderson's two-cylinder specialty work.

Once a year, Harlen Anderson makes two trips up the road with selected tractors from his collection for the annual antique and steam tractor exhibit at Williams Grove. He tries to vary from year to year the models he displays with other antique equipment.

To keep his tractors in top-running condition, Anderson maintains a regular "start-up" schedule, rotating through the machines in his collection.

"About every two months, I go in the shed, start a couple up and let them run awhile to make sure everything - engines, water pumps, carburetors - is working," he explains. "It's really very little problem starting them."

A quiet individual, Harlen Anderson is not one to put on airs or brag about his keen abilities and wealth of experience with what might be considered a dying skill. There are just not many two-cylinder antique tractor specialists around any longer and owners of the vintage workhorses find increasing difficulty in getting repair work done. To them, Anderson's skills are invaluable.

"I'm not getting rich at it," he philosophizes. "But I like it."

Berks Countians Take Top Livestock Honors At Kutztown Fair

CONNIE LEINBACH
Berks Co. Correspondent

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.) — Before her family moved to the Oley Valley two years ago from suburban New York, Sarah Johnson, 18, never imagined she would count dairy cows among her beloved pets.

"Two years ago, I'd never seen a cow up close," she said during the weeklong Kutztown Fair, which ended last Saturday.

But when her parents opted for a different lifestyle in the rolling Oley Valley hills, they decided to get some farm animals for Sarah and her brother, Christopher, 14.

Because the family does not farm for a living, they decided to get calves for the kids to raise for two years until they freshen. Then the cows are sent to their neighbor, Scott Youse, whose family has a milking operation, Sarah said.

The family, she said, has six Jerseys, two steers, two hogs, six chickens, as well as four cats and three dogs.

Sarah and Chris lovingly led their two Jersey calves around the fairgrounds.

"They're best buddies," Sarah said about the relationship between their animals. The earth-brown cows, whose heads are shaded with black, seemed to enjoy the attention.

"They're huggable," Sarah said. "They stand there and they love it."

Later in the week, the two picked up some honors, with Sarah's calf winning the junior reserve champion and Chris's calf winning second in the 4-H show.

Youse also captured the open show grand and reserve champion Jersey.

The attention to detail Travis Werley, 18, of Shoemakersville, took while grooming his gleaming white yearling lamb paid off with his capturing the grand champion market lamb. Werley has been showing sheep and steers for 10 years.

Tracey Voortman, Mertztwon R.D. 2, had the reserve heavyweight champion market lamb.

New Cornhead Chops Stalks

INTERCOURSE (Lancaster Co.) — Geringhoff, a German manufacturing company specializing in combine headers, will be entering the Eastern U.S. market this Fall with a cornhead that chops stalks as it picks the ear.

Although this is a new concept in North America, European farmers have incorporated stalk chopping with their corn combining for many years. Geringhoff manufactures 70 percent of the cornheads sold in Europe.

There are several reasons why this machine will be a great advantage to Eastern farmers. First, the Geringhoff cornhead will chop corn stalks into 6 to 8 inch pieces without using more than 3 hp per row. If chopping stalks after the combine with a rotary or a flail mower is part of a farmer's operation, one complete pass over the field can be eliminated with the use of the Geringhoff cornhead. Considerable cost savings result.

Furthermore, by chopping the stalks in such short lengths, the environment for root worm larvae is reduced. There is less stalk in which the rootworm can breed.

Geringhoff cornheads can be purchased for any make combine and in any row spacing. They are available in 3-, 4-, 5-, 6-, 7- or 8-row configurations.

The Geringhoff cornhead will chop corn stalks into 6 to 8 inch pieces without using more than 3 HP per row. Another exclusive feature of this header is adjustable stripper plates. A simple mechanical system, hydraulically activated from the cab, will open or close the stripper plates on the go.

Another exclusive feature of this header is adjustable stripper plates. A simple mechanical system, hydraulically activated from the cab, will open or close the stripper plates on the go. This will be particularly effective in this year's crop because of the drought.

Hoober Equipment Inc. will demonstrate the Geringhoff cornhead on a Case IH Axial Flow combine at a field day outside of Middletown, Del. on Aug. 29. For details call the Sales Department at Hoober Equipment.

Anyone interested in more information concerning this innovative Geringhoff system should call C.B. Hoober & Son Inc., Intercourse, Pa., (717) 768-8231.

Clarks Ag Center Celebrates 50 Years

TURBOTVILLE (Northumberland Co.) — It's been 50 years since the late Joseph A. Clark purchased a flour and feed mill in Turbotville in 1941, to compliment the business activities of Clark's Feed Mill at Shamokin.

Frank Miller managed the flour and grist mill with six employees for many years until retirement. In 1966, the flour mill was replaced with a pellet mill. It operated as a grist mill with contract poultry feed production until 1977.

During 1977, a retail store was constructed under the direction of Ned Clark, who is second generation of the Clark family. New product lines of lawn and garden, seeds, pet foods, hardware, propane, oil and Purina feeds were added to supplement Clark's feeds.

The next major thrust was in custom feed production resulting from dairy programs, a forage and feed testing lab addition, and dairy consultant services. Contract hog programs were begun in conjunction with Purina.

The mill now operates 20 hours per day and makes more than 790 custom feeds in meal, coarse, pellet, and extruded forms. Working with area agribusiness people in satellite operation, pet food concentrates, feed from food by-products, extruded soybeans, roasted beans and dog food are manufactured.

A Purina Service Center was established in 1987 to distribute to pet stores and other feed mills. This segment is managed by Julie Clark, who is the third generation of Clark's in Turbotville.

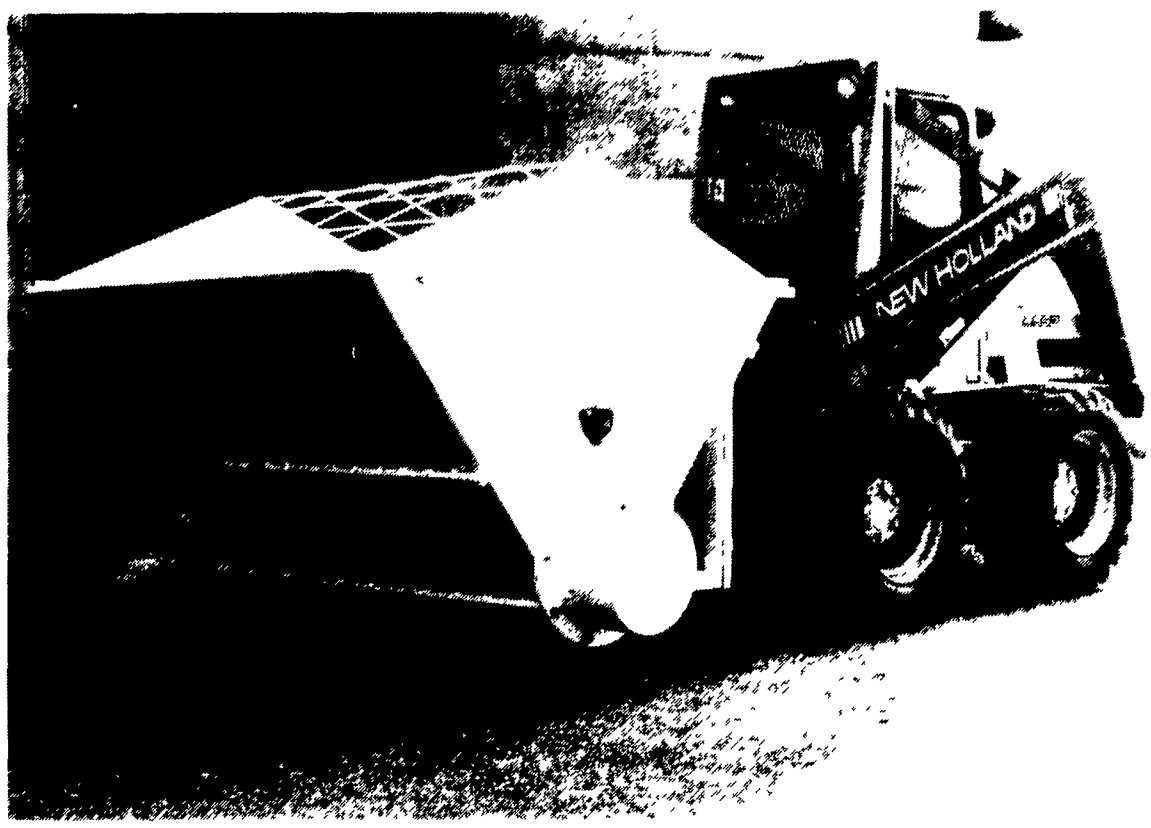
To serve customers better, a new retail store was built during 1990. The complex of Clark's Ag Center, Inc., a family owned business, now employs 50. A fleet of 17 trucks moves products into Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Maryland, and parts of West Virginia.

The public is invited to help celebrate the 50th anniversary event, which will be held Friday, Aug. 23 and Saturday, Aug. 24.

On both days, the Turbotville Lions Club will be at Clark's with their mobile food concession stand. Clark's will be supporting the club's efforts by distributing free coupons to be used at the concession.

During this special anniversary weekend there will be many specials throughout the store. On Saturday, from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m., there will be a flea and tick dog dip. Requests for a donation of $1 per dog will go to the Turbotville Lions Club and will be used for one of their community projects.

Feeder For Skid Loaders



HUDSON, Wis.— Harvest Tec is introducing a feeding attachment for skid steer loaders. The Skid Feeder 40 has quick attachment brackets that match up with the loader arms of most skid steer loaders.

The hopper is top-loaded with feeds such as silage or grain. A hydraulically driven bottom auger feeds the material out of the bottom of the hopper to the side of the loader. The feed can be discharged directly into a bunk or fenceline feeder as the loader moves forward. The hopper has a holding capacity of 40 cubic feet and carries 800 pounds of silage.

The Skid Feeder 40 also has an optional bedding spreader that throws bedding sideways up to 12 feet out. With the bedding spreader, the loader can move down a barn alley and quickly bed the stalls to the side.

Optional mounting plates are available for attaching the hopper to tractor loaders or to 3-point hitches. For more information, contact MDS Manufacturer's Diversified Services, 112 S. Railroad Ave., New Holland, PA 17557, (717) 355-2446.

Fall-Seeded Forage Crops Seldom Encounter Drought

YORK (York Co.) — Extremely dry weather conditions in certain areas of the Northeast have caused serious shortages in forage production.

Dairy farmers and other livestock producers looking for ways to manage their way through the winter of 1991-1992 may want to consider fall seeded forage crops to help make up lost time and reduce production risk.

Fall-seeded forage crops seldom encounter drought conditions. The key is to plant early to take advantage of fall/winter moisture and then beat mother nature to the punch in the spring before hot, dry weather is likely to develop.

Small grains have often been used to fall/plant spring harvest. Seedway Inc. has worked with two forage mixtures that have been formulated to produce forage in this manner with forage quality that is superior to the traditional straight rye seedings used for this purpose.

Winter Pea-KAL and Nutri-KAL have TRICAL brand triticale as their base. Winter Pea-KAL includes Austrian winter peas and Nutri-KAL includes hairy vetch.

These legumes contribute to forage quality, especially protein, and plowdown value of the forage stubble. A free fact sheet can be obtained by calling Seedway at (800) 836-3720.

Schwank Becomes Extension Director

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Judith L. Schwank has been named county extension director for Penn State Cooperative Extension in Berks County, effective August 1.

Dr. Theodore R. Alter, director of the southeast region in Penn State's College of Agriculture, announced Schwank's appointment to the Berks County Extension Board last week.

"Her broad training and experience will be definite assets as we consider the needs of Berks County and strive to provide meaningful and practical educational programs for the diverse audiences in the region," Alter said. "I am very pleased that she will be our new CED in Berks County and will become a part of the administrative team for Penn State Cooperative Extension."

Schwank began her career with extension in 1981 as an agricultural agent in Berks County. She has had program responsibility in the areas of commercial horticulture, home grounds, water quality, master gardening, and 4-H plant science. She also played a key role in starting the Kutztown Produce Auction, which provides fresh fruits and vegetables for markets between New York and Philadelphia.

Before joining Penn State, Schwank worked in agribusiness and served six years as vocational horticulture instructor in the Lancaster and Bethlehem school districts.

A member of several College of Agriculture boards and committees, Schwank also is a member of the Pennsylvania and National Associations of County Agricultural Agents, Epsilon Sigma Phi, and the Garden Writers Association of America.

A native of Pittsburgh, Schwank currently resides in Reading, where she has been instrumental in working with the city and lay volunteers to restore the city greenhouse.

Some who have said they will attend are Chief White Cloud from New Jersey; Chief Lazora from the Onondaga Nation in New York; Chief Kenneth Skye from New York; Chief Buffy Red Feather from the Earth Clan of the Southeastern Confederacy of the Cherokee; Black Crow from Orleans, Vt.; Dancing Feather, a well known dancer, poet and lecturer.

From Washington, D.C., Gladys (Owiant) Addison from the Bureau of Indian Affairs, her husband Flying Arrow, and Owiant's brother and daughter from New York — Owl Feather and Wapett.

Also planning to attend, from out-of-state, are The Shenandoah's from Onondaga Territory in N.Y., and Pam and Bob Cersier from Wyoming.

Some Pennylvanians planning attendance are Marvelle Spotted Elk from Glen Rock; Low Bow Estrada from Florida; Robert and Pat Hunter; Sister of the Coyote; Bill and Shirley Paul from Philadelphia; and Little Freedom and John Richardson from Lancaster.

Some of the tribes who will be represented are the Teton Sioux, Haliwa Saponi, Cherokee, Onondaga, Nanticoke, Tuscarora, Shoshone, Blackfoot, Delaware, Lenni Lenape, Pottawatomi, Navaho and Mohawk.

Princess Winona will be present but not performing because her husband Gray Elk broke the Sacred Circle in November. Her adopted daughter, Wenonah "Earth Woman" Riegel, will take over Princess Winona's usual duties.

There will be handmade silver and turquoise, authentic traditional crafts, furs, beads, leather items, fine arts, and Indian corn for sale.

Artifact collectors will be present both days. These include Flintknapper Robert Winters of East Brunswick, N.J.; Thomas Waters, president of the Society for PA Archeology, Chap. 21; and Gary Fogelman, owner and publisher of Indian Artifact Magazine.

Food will be for sale both days, including some Native American items.

For more details concerning artifact collectors, call Kim Mattern, 872-7763. For drum and dancers information, call Ruby Olson, 764-6285. For general information, call Edna Sheckart, 751-1527.

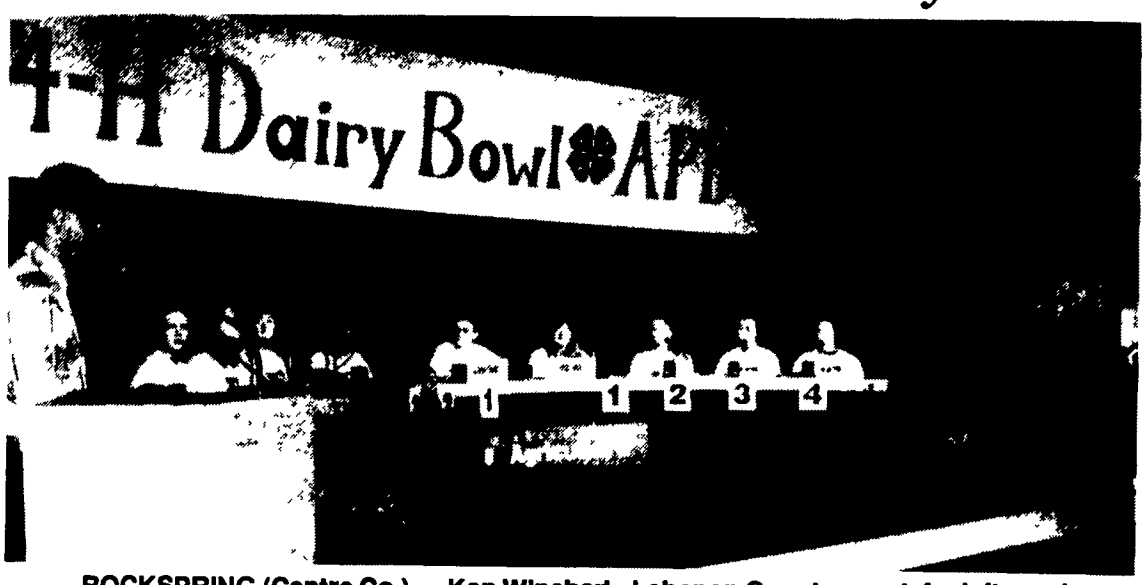
Ag Progress Holds First 4-H Dairy Bowl



ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Ken Winebark, Lebanon County agent, far left, moderates the first Ag Progress Days 4-H Dairy Bowl last week. The teams competing are Indiana County, right and Clearfield, left. The last question, "What is the name of the paper which accompanies a purebred animal and certifies her parentage?" (answer: registration certificate), gave Indiana the win, 70-65 over Clearfield. "The contest was close, to say the very least," said Winebark. (The first question, by the way, was "What is the more common name of a disease called 'hypomagnesium'? Answer: grass tetany.) Photo by Andy Andrews

Records Set At Bedford Fair

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Despite a severe drought coming in the midst of slow economic tiems, records were set in all phases of grand champion sales at the Bedford Fair Junior Livestock Sale held at the Bedford County Fair last week.

The grand champion steer, owned by Nathan Claycomb of Alum Bank RD 1, went for $10.50 for the 1,100-pound steer. The steer was bought by Fay Leydig of Hyndman, representing Black Dimond Energy of Cumberland, Md. The price set a record over the $8.50 paid for Claycomb's grand champion last year.

Reserve grand champion, also owned by Claycomb, went for $5.25 and was purchased by Hoss's Steak and Seafood of Bedford.

Before auctioning his animal, the young Claycomb tied the animal to the railing and quietly told the auctioneer that 5 percent of his sale earnings would be donated to the 4-H Scholarship fund. In a generous co-offer, Hoss's agreed to match this sum with both the grand and reserve grand sales.

American Outfitters paid .94 a pound for a 1,077-pound champion lightweight homebred owned by Christine Leader of Everett RD 3. Bob Turkovich, owner of American Outfitters, donated the animal to the Bedford Lions Club to be used for charitable purposes.

Bedford Farm Bureau bought the reserve lightweight champion,

Grand champion steer ownned by Nathan Claycomb went for $10.50 per pound and was bought by Fay Leydig of Hyndman.

Steers averaged .80 per pound, not including the grand champion.

Jennifer Sweinhart, New Enterprise, could hardly believe her eyes as the bidding climbed to a hefty $14.50 for her 225-pound grand champion market hog. It was purchased by Willard Campbell, owner of Hoss's Steak and Seafood Restaurant and Bedford Ford.

American Outfitters bid the reserve grand, a 233-pound hog, owned by Angie Gates of New Enterprise RD 1, for $4.75. Turkovich then turned this one over to the Bedford Fire Department.

Adam Gates of New Enterprise RD 1, sold the champion hog carcass of 144 pounds to Bedford Farm Bureau for $4.75. The reserve carcass owned by Ginger Kegg of Bedford RD 1 was purchased by Kendalls Vending for $3.25.

Turkovich, owner of Outfitters, donated the 88-pound lamb back to Brantner to be used as breeding stock.

Willard Campbell, Hoss's and Bedford Ford, bought the 116-pound grand champion lamb from Candace Crawford of Everett for $5.

Bank Supports Market Lamb Sale

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — The ninth annual Chester County 4-H Market Lamb Sale held at the Goshen Fairgrounds easily compared to other Chester County sales in past years.

The grand champion lamb, shown by junior member Maria Stoltzfus, Elverson, was bought by Brandywine Savings Bank of Downingtown for $3.70/pound.

The bank, the purchasing bidder from 1985 to 1991, has strongly supported the 4-H sheep clubs of Chester County. The reserve grand champion lamb was shown by Kendra Stoltzfus, Elverson, and was purchased by Keystone Farm Credit, Avondale for 2.15/pound. Keystone Farm Credit has also purchased lambs from County 4-H members since the sales inception in 1985.

The overall average of the sale was $1.60/pound on all 31 lambs sold, breaking the current market price by almost $1.10 per pound. Aqilante's Meat Market, Berwyn, was the volume buyer of the evening, purchasing 11 lambs which was very much appreciated by the 4-H'ers. Aquilante has been a very strong supporter since 1985.

Purchasing the champion medium weight, exhibited by Hans Stoltzfus, Elverson for $1.35/pound, was Walter M. Dunlap & Sons, Inc. who has been a staunch supporter of the county lamb sale. The champion lightweight, also exhibited by Hans Stoltzfus, was purchased by Annette Johnson of Downingtown for $1.40/pound. The reserve champion medium weight, exhibited by Kevin Smoker of Parkesburg, was purchased by Ration Maker East Inc. of Asheboro N.C. for $1.50/pound. The reserve champion lightweight was purchased by Bob Wiggins, owner of Wiggins Auto Tags in West Goshen, for $2.00/pound.

For further information on this and other 4-H projects, contact the Chester County Cooperative Extension at (215) 696-3500.

Bush Proclaims Farm Safety Week

ELLICOTT CITY, Md. — President Bush has proclaimed the week of September 15-21 as National Farm Safety Week.

According to the National Safety Council, agricultural work accidents resulted in 1,300 deaths and 120,000 disabling injuries in 1990. The accident death rate in agriculture was 42 per 100,000 workers, among the highest compared with the composite rate for all industries of 9 per 100,000 workers.

Even if you just live or commute through a rural area, everyone needs to be aware of slow-moving farm equipment. Many accidents occur each year when speeding automobiles overdrive their field of vision and collide with slower moving vehicles. Be more aware of farm equipment when driving and always expect the unexpected.

Judge Names Three Haymakers

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — A roundhouse right hook that packs a lot power is known as a "haymaker" in the world of boxing.

The term came about because a haymaker punch is one that ends the fight and brings the struggle to fruition.

Boxers known to have haymakers in their arsenal are held in respect.

In the more peaceful world of farming, earning the reputation as a "haymaker" also carries a lot of respect. The ability to grow and harvest quality hay carries its own punch when livestock need feeding and dairymen want to keep high producing cows making milk.

Three top haymakers were named during the recent Ag Progress Days hay show.

The show is unique because it not only takes into consideration aspects of hay, such as color, odor, leaf content, etc., but each hay sample is tested for nutrient value with a testing lab. The lab results are also taken into consideration when the judge makes his final placing.

From a practical standpoint, the results of the hay competition are more meaningful than if they were based only on sensory characteristics.

York County's Beshore Farms, in New Cumberland; Robert Bieber, of Nazareth, in Northampton County; and Nevin Rice, of Blain, in Perry County, all were awarded respective section championship ribbons by show judge Lester Vough. Vough is a forage crops specialist in the University of Maryland's Department of Agronomy.

The entries submitted are to be automatically fowarded for further consideration in the 1992 state Farm Show.

The Ag Progress Days contest is divided into three sections with 10 classes in each. Sections are divided based on method of curing. The classes range from first- to later-cutting alfalfa, clover, grass and mixed hay.

The first section is for field cured or partially field cured, and also mow finished hay not heat treated and without a preservative added. The champion haymaker in the first section is Beshore Farms with an entry in later-cut alfalfa.

Section II competition is for hay which was partially field cured and heat dried, but without preservatives. Bieber earned his champion status in this section with an entry that was also later cut alfalfa.

The Section III competition is for hay which was paritally field cured and used a hay preservative. Nevin Rice took this section championship with an entry of later-cut mixed alfalfa-grass hay.

Ag Groups Comment

MESHOPPEN (Wyoming Co.)— The Progressive Agriculture Organization (PRO AG) urged the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) to initiate an additional premium of $1.50 per hundredweight on milk regulated by the PMMB.

Arden Tewksbury, manager of PRO AG presented the testimony on behalf of several farm organizations as well as the county commissioners from several northern counties, according to Tewksbury.

The organizations requested the special premium as a result of the severe drought that has plagued the majority of production throughout Pennsylvania.

Tewksbury said the average dairy farmer was spending nearly $2,000 per month on unanticipated supplemental feeding programs as a result of the dry weather burning up normal pasture fields used during summer months.

Tewksbury said that most dairy farmers were not able to harvest any second cuttings from their hay fields, and those who did bale second or third cuttings were only obtaining 15-20% of the normal crop.

Roy Watson, manager of North Penn Co-Op, fron Troy, informed the board of the severity of the drought in many areas of Bradford County, and predicted that many farmers would be without feed for their animals before this winter.

Both Watson and Tewksbury urged the PMMB to work with the farm organizations and members of the Pennsylvania legislature to rectify the inequities of pricing milk to dairy farmers.

Watson told the board, "You people keep passing emergency premiums for dairy farmers, but the dairy farmers in Pennsylvania that ship to milk handlers regulated by Federal Order #2 never benefit from these special emergency premiums, and it's time we correct these inequities."

Tewksbury recommended that a large portion of the premium be placed on fluid milk, but strongly recommended some portion of the premium be placed on manufactured milk.

Junior 2-Year-Old Judged Grand At Jersey Show

WHITNEYVILLE (Tioga Co.) — A junior 2-year-old Jersey was named grand champion of the District 4 Jersey Parish Show held recently in Whitneyville.

Graber Brass June-ET, owned by David Norman of Normandell Farms, Liberty, was named grand champion in the open division by judge Alan Chittenden, of Schodock Landing, N.Y. Her sire was A-Nine Top Brass.

June beat out the reserve grand champion, a 5-year-old, Nobledale Volunteer Cherry, shown by Nobledale Farm, of Gillett. Cherry was sired by Mayfield Volunteer.

In the youth division, Ellen Norman's Foster Daffodil Dimples, a senior 3-year-old, was named grand champion. Dimples' sire was Highland Magic Duncan.

Jeremiah Kosa's junior 2-year-old, Edko Christie, was reserve grand of the youth division. Christie was second in her class to Norman's June.

The junior champion of the show was Sunset Ridge Silver Jewel, a senior yearling, show by Joe Sweely of Mansfield. Sweely also showed the reserve junior champion, Stoney Knob Brigadier Valarie, a junior yearling.

The premier breeder of the show was Bill Eich, while Normandell Farms received the banner for premier exhibitor.

In the protein production class, Normandell also received the Tom Noble Memorial award for the production of Norman's Top Brass Valarie.

The show was well attended with full classes averaging more than seven animals in the senior division and about six in the junior division. The heaviest number of entries was in the senior calf competition with 14 animals shown.

Meridian Names New Ag Lender

READING (Berks Co.) — Meridian Bank announced that Wayne Steinour, assistant banking officer, has joined the agri-business lending group as the bank's first agri-business representative within York, Adams, and Cumberland counties.

Responsible for establishing and maintaining relationship within the western region of Meridian's Susquehanna Valley division, Steinour works out of the Market Street branch office at 140 West Market Street, York. Steinour said, "I look forward to working closely with the local Meridian branch offices in establishing agri-business relationship with customers."

A five-year veteran of the former Hill Financial, Steinour was hired by Meridian Bank in 1989. During his tenure with Hill, Steinour was named a branch administrator in 1987, and branch manager of the Chambersburg office in 1985, one year after he had joined the company.

Wayne Steinour

Within the Meridian organization, Steinour became an assistant banking officer of the Harrisburg/Cumberland area in 1990.

Steinour's is a new ag-lending position which extends the original staff in providing agricultural banking to famers and to agriculturally-related businesses in the western part of Meridian's Susquehanna Valley division. Previously, Meridian served the agricultural needs of the three counties from the agri-business office in Lancaster.

Robert Zook, assistant vice president for the Lancaster-Lebanon area, said, "Wayne Steinour is the first ag-lender to be located permanently in York where he can provide more convenient contact with customers."

Born and raised in Gettysburg, Steinour graduated from Gettysburg High School in 1979. From there he went to Shippensburg University and graduated in 1983 with a bachelor of science degree in Business Administration. He also completed coursework at the Institute of Financial Education. Presently, Steinour is working toward an MBA degree at Mount Saint Mary's College.

If The Forage You Chop Is Drought-Stressed.... Test It For Nitrates
Drought-stricken fields of corn, sorghum and legumes are most apt to contain harmful levels of nitrate, particularly those that have been heavily fertilized with manure or nitrogen fertilizer.
Excessive levels of nitrates can cause lower production, reproduction problems or even death.
We are a full service testing laboratory. Contact us at our toll-free number 1-800-659-7542 for price list and sample mailers.

MASTER MIX

SILO-BOOSTER

REDUCING THE LEVEL OF NITRATE IN HEAT STRESSED CORN SILAGE

Why should you use Master Mix SILO-BOOSTER instead of another product? SILO-BOOSTER has been proven in 22 years of on-farm use, as well as in continuous university research. With each new discovery in silage science, we have improved the original formula. Today's SILO-BOOSTER gives the most effective silage innoculant yet developed.

Laboratory analysis of both treated and untreated silages confirms the increased production of lactic acid by the bacterial cultures in SILO-BOOSTER.

	SILO-BOOSTER TREATED	CONTROL
Lactic acid % (average of 11 measurements from day 1 to day 30)	2.35%	1.83%
pH (average of 11 measurements from day 1 to day 30)	3.98%	3.96%

While both silages showed very similar changes in total pH change; the SILO-BOOSTER treated silage contained more lactic acid. The homofermentive production of lactic acid by SILO-BOOSTER cultures reduces the potential for dry matter losses and the generation of excessive heat of fermentation.

COMPARISON OF SILO-BOOSTER TREATED AND CONTROL SILAGES

Fed To High Producing Dairy Cows
Conducted At The University of Wisconsin

	SILO-BOOSTER SILAGE	CONTROL
Milk (Lb./day)	87.3	86.2	NS
Fat %	3.84	3.88	NS
Forage DM Intake (Lb./day)	26.97	29.99	**
Conc. DM Intake (Lb./day)	27.45	26.78	NS
Total DM Intake (Lb. day)	54.31	56.77	*
DM/Lb. Milk	0.65	0.69	**

N.S. - non significant, *<5%, <1%
Statistics conducted on weekly totals.

SILO-BOOSTER treated silage was able to generate income per ton of forage feed. With milk valued at $ .125 per pound; butterfat at $ .17 per point; forage at $ .045 per pound of dry matter, and the concentrate portions at $ .08 per pound; SILO-BOOSTER silage returned $4.90 for each $1.00 invested in inoculant.

APPLICATION: 1 Lb. of SILO-BOOSTER per ton of Forage.
2 Lbs. of SILO-BOOSTER per ton of High Moisture Ear Corn.

Nitrate Toxicity Associated With Drought

Drought-stressed grasses such as oats, millet, sudangrass and corn may contain high levels of nitrate which can cause nitrate toxicity in consuming animals. Grass plants naturally take up nitrate nitrogen (nitrates) through their roots and convert it into proteins in the leaves. Under stress conditions the conversion of nitrates into proteins is inhibited and nitrates accumulate in the leaves. When these plants are consumed by animals the nitrate is converted into nitrate which is readily absorbed into the animal's blood stream. Nitrite converts hemoglobin (the oxygen carrying part of the blood) into methemoglobin which is incapable of carrying oxygen and animal begins to suffer from anoxia (insufficient oxygen). Nitrate toxicity can negatively affect animal growth, reproduction, and milk production. If not corrected, nitrate toxicity can cause death.

Factors Affecting Nitrate Accumulation

Factors which control the amount of nitrate in the plant are plant species, nitrogen fertilization, light intensity, and drought. Certain plants (cereals and corn) accumulate nitrates more than other plants. Generally there is a direct relationship between plant nitrate concentration and increasing rates of N fertilization. This accumulation is greater from nitrate fertilizers than from ammonium sulfate or urea fertilizers. Accumulation is also greater when application of N fertilizer has been delayed. However, even on soils high in nitrates, nitrate accumulation by plants in toxic amounts is the exception. Factors, such as drought, that restrict plant growth are greater causes of nitrate accumulation than nitrate fertilization. Cases of "corn stalk poisoning" have been the direct result of grazing drought-stressed corn by cattle. Low light intensity (overcast weather) also increase the nitrate concentration in plants.

Toxic Levels

It is difficult to determine the level of nitrate in the plant that will result in adverse performance of animals. This is because there is a complex of factors which affect the animals response to nitrates. Experimental work indicates that forages containing over 0.4% nitrate nitrogen are potentially dangerous. They may not necessarily cause poisoning, but the risk of feeding them is high. The risk decreases as nitrate levels decreases until levels are below 0.1% nitrate nitrogen when forages are considered safe and can be fed without restrictions. In dairy cattle, nitrates did not cause increased methemoglobin levels until the amount of nitrate consumed exceeded 24 g/100 lb. body weight. If you suspect that nitrate levels may be excessive in your forage, consult your veterinarian and have the forage tested. Consult with your local testing laboratory on procedures for collecting and transporting samples suspected of high nitrate levels.

Control Measures

Even under periods of drought the chances of nitrate poisoning are small. Forages, even under drought stress, generally do not contain excessive amounts of nitrates and if they do conditions for thier conversion into nitrites may not exist and poisoning will not occur. With this in mind the following suggestions are offered for the management of high nitrate forages:

- Feed limited amounts of high nitrate forages.
- Mix high nitrate forages with low nitrate forages.
- Feed high energy feeds (readily available carbohydrates) with vitamin A supplement. Carbohydrates will help provide rumen microflora with energy to convert nitrates into proteins so that it will not be converted into nitrites.

Late Season Corn Management

The continued drought has made early silage harvest a reality for many corn growers. Harvest plans for silage should reflect the potential for recovery, the moisture content of the crop, and yield loss due to loss of lower leaves. As the season progresses in the next few weeks, the likelihood of yield increases due to late summer rains will diminish rapidly.

Loss of leaf area and kernel abortion due to water stress, both of which are common, will limit recovery potential. The moisture content of the crop will vary dramatically between fields and should be evaluated before storing the crop. There are no good rules of thumb for predicting the moisture content of immature drought stressed corn.

Silage that is too dry can have water added at the rate of 7 gallons per ton for each point of moisture necessary. Silage that is too wet can be mixed with ground corn at approximately 30 pounds per ton per 1 percent of moisture change desired. Trying to change the moisture content more than a few points, though, is usually not practical. Wet silage can also be stored in trenches or bags to reduce seepage.

The forage value of drought stressed corn is often comparable to normal corn silage. Usually the protein content is higher and energy levels are 85 to 100 percent of normal. Nitrate levels in the forage should be monitored where corn silage is harvested from heavily manured fields.

Grain producers should be evaluating pollination and kernel set during the next few weeks to determine the best fields to save for grain and those to salvage as silage. The price for a corn crop salvaged as silage should be set somewhere between the potential returns from harvesting as grain (low) and the feed value of the crop (high).

The stressful conditions present here in August will likely contribute to increased standability problems this fall, as stalk reserves are depleted during grain fill and plants will be predisposed to stalk rot organisms. This may be a consideration in making plans for a timely harvest.

Purchasing the Lowest Cost Source of Protein

Energy rather than protein is much more likely to be the limiting nutrient in beef cow rations except when low quality forages are fed. Protein levels may be marginal and, in fact, for young growing animals protein may be grossly deficient.

If supplemental protein is needed and producers want to compare the protein content of more traditional supplements with alternative feeds, the simplest and quickest method is to value feeds based solely on crude protein content per pound of dry matter. This method however, does not account for nutrients other than protein in the feeds such as minerals, vitamins and energy. As shown in Table 5, there is a range in cost per pound of crude protein from $0.04 to $0.61. In this example, the lowest cost protein source is urea, but urea by itself cannot be fed to cow herds. Additionally, urea and other nonprotein nitrogen (NPN) compounds are not recommended when low quality forages are fed as the sole component of the diet. Generally energy levels are too low in these diets for the animals to receive full benefit from NPN feeding.

Conclusion

When feed supplies are limited, there are alternative feeds that may be successfully substituted in beef cattle rations. More than the price per ton of feed should be considered when choosing alternative feeds. Other factors to consider when comparing feeds include dry matter content, energy value, crude protein content, and feasibility of feeding in formulated rations. Finally, a good herd health program, forage testing and ration balancing are essential to obtain maximum animal performance and profitability from alternative feeds.

Farmers, Homeowners Should Be Aware Of Consumptive Use Of Water

During a drought, it may be tempting to give the lawn a daily sprinkling, water the vegetable garden for an hour each morning or if you're a farmer, start irrigating your 300 acres of corn. Before you do, take note of how much water you will consumptively use.

"Consumptive use of water occurs when water is drawn from a ground or surface source and not directly returned to the earth," said Dr. Al Jarrett, professor of agricultural engineering in Penn State's College of Agriculture. "It's a major concern during drought emergencies."

Consumptively used water doesn't disappear forever. But it is released into the atmosphere through evaporation. It can be reused only when it finally returns to the earth as precipitation — and in a summer like this one, that could take a while.

The water you sprinkle on your lawn and garden is consumptively used since it either evaporates or is taken up by the plants' roots. So are the 9,000 gallons of water taken from the soil by an acre of corn on a hot July day.

The five gallons of water used to flush the toilet or the 30 gallons used to wash a load of clothes is not consumptively used since it returns to the earth once it is treated. A dairy cow can drink 20 gallons of water in a day, but only half is consumptively used in milk production. The rest returns to the earth as waste.

"Not surprisingly, agriculture is one of the largest consumptive users of water," said Jarrett. "It requires an average 600,000 gallons of water each year to grow an acre of any crop. Except for the small amount that remains in the stems and leaves, all of this water is transpired into the air."

During a declared drought emergency, there are limitations on the amount of water farmers may consumptively use. In the Susquehanna River Basin, the limit is 20,000 gallons per day. In other areas, certain water uses may be restricted.

Homeowners watering lawns and gardens also should monitor water consumption during a drought. Garden hoses, sprinklers and basin faucets use from three to five gallons per minute. If you run a sprinkler for two hours, that can amount to 600 gallons.

During a drought emergency, you should contact the river basin commission in your area if you consumptively use more than 20,000 gallons of water a day or are considering a large irrigation project. The commission regulates water use and can assist with planning large water-use projects.

If you are located in the Susquehanna River Basin, contact the Susquehanna River Basin Commission, 1721 North Front Street, Harrisburg, PA 17102, (717) 238-0427. Growers in the Delaware River Basin can contact the Delaware River Basin Commission, P.O. Box 7360, West Trenton, NJ 08628, (609) 883-9500.

For further information or for a copy of a listing of fact sheets on water consumption and other issues, contact the Agricultural and Biological Engineering Department, 246 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 865-7685.

Penn Jersey Crop Management Field Day Set

NAZARETH (Northampton Co.) — The 1991 Penn Jersey Crop Management Field Day will be held Saturday, Sept. 7, at the Snyder Research and Extension Farm in Hunterton County, N.J.

The Field Days are an annual event sponsored by Rutgers and Penn State Extension, Pennsylvania and New Jersey Ag Businesses, ASCS, SCS, and Pennsylvania and New Jersey Conservation Districts.

The theme for the 1991 Field Day is "Integrated Crop Management."

The Field Day will include crop cultural demonstrations, variety tests, conservation practices, nutrient management, integrated crop management, scouting, a trade show, and more.

The Snyder Research Farm was bequeathed to Rutgers University by Melda C. Snyder in 1988. It is being developed as the Northeast's newest regional research field station. Its purpose will be to generate and disseminate basic and applied research information on the production of a wide variety of food and fiber crops. At 390 acres, the farm is one of the largest single tracts of prime farmland in Hunterton County.

Exhibitors are welcome. For more information, contact Greg Solt, county agent, RR 4, Greystone Building, Nazareth, PA 18064, (215) 746-1970.

Keep Good Records, Keep Machinery Running Better

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Keeping good records is a necessity in any farm operation. Record-keeping skills also can help producers take better care of mechanical equipment ranging from combines to cars, said a machinery specialist in Penn State's College of Agriculture.

"Farmers should maintain records for every piece of equipment they own," said James Garthe, instructor in agricultural and biological engineering. "Keep the owner's manual and a service log for each machine. If you have a question about a particular piece of equipment, you'll know where to find the answer."

Garthe said that too many people pay too little attention to owner's manuals.

"We're kidding ourselves if we think we know more about a machine than the manufacturer who designed and tested it," he said. "The owner's manual tells you how often to change the oil, check the belts and whatever else you need to do to keep the machine working properly."

He said it's a good idea to keep a maintenance log for each machine and update it whenever a machine is serviced.

"When you change the oil in your tractor, write down the date and the hour meter reading," Garthe said. "This eliminates guesswork from equipment maintenance — you'll know exactly when to change the oil again just by keeping a careful eye on your meter."

The records should be easy to find. "If you keep your records organized in a special place, you won't have to scramble to find them when you have a question," Garthe said. "You'll be able to take a quick look and see exactly when a particular machine is due for oil changes, filter cleanings and other routine types of maintenance."

Garthe also suggests keeping a wall chart to make equipment maintenance easier. "Many farmers have between 15 and 20 pieces of equipment," he said. "If you keep a wall chart that lists the maintenance for each, it provides a quick reminder of what you need to do to keep your equipment running."

Horse Feed Tradeoffs Needed To Cope With Drought Effects

The art of feeding horses may need some adjustment in a drought year like 1991, said Malcolm J. Commer Jr., equine economics specialist for the Cooperative Extension Service University of Maryland System.

"Regardless of weather patterns between now and early fall, we know there's going to be a shortage of good quality hay," Dr. Commer said. "The amount of rain between now and then will merely determine the severity of that shortage."

Most horses don't need the high-protein content of good quality alfalfa hay, Commer said. Notable exceptions are race horses, other high-performance horses, and lactating brood mares — and then only when peak performance is required.

Hay or grass should be considered the primary feed for horses — not concentrates, which are only a supplement to achieve a balanced ration.

Good quality hay can provide both nutrients and roughage in fairly adequate amounts for horses at a reasonable cost, Commer said. But, as the price of hay increases — as it is doing this year — the cost of added concentrates becomes more affordable. Thus, a tradeoff can be made between cheaper, lower quality hay and a higher percentage of concentrates in the ration.

With high hay prices almost a certainty by winter, Commer thinks this would be a good year for even backyard horse owners to lock in a price now for good quality grass hay. It also would be a good year to build extra hay storage — even a temporary shed to keep hay bales off the ground and protected from the weather.

Keep in mind that tight baled hay requires 167 cubic feet of storage space per ton. Loose baled hay needs 333 cubic feet per ton. For moderately loose bales, use some figure between these two extremes.

Researchers Say Study Results Dispute Reports

University Park (Centre Co.) — Penn State researchers have found evidence to dispute recent reports that fertilizing lawns poses a major threat to drinking water quality.

During a three-year study funded by the U.S. Geological Survey as part of a water quality assessment project, researchers investigated the contents of runoff and soil water from experimental turf plots after applying fertilizers, herbicides and insecticides.

Contrary to expectations, no increased level of nitrate was found in the water that flowed from the turf plots, according to Scott Harrison, pesticide education coordinator for Penn State. Harrison conducted the research with Dr. Thomas Watschke, a professor of turfgrass management.

In addition, the leachate -- water that percolates down through the soil -- had no elevated nitrate concentrations.

Fears that chemicals applied to lawns or croplands eventually find their way into groundwater sources has sparked recent debate over the use of fertilizers and pesticides. Nitrate, a form of nitrogen used in fertilizers, is believed to pose a health risk when present in high concentrations.

In large doses nitrate can cause methemoglobinemia, or "blue-baby syndrome," in infants. The condition inhibits red blood cells in the baby's body from absorbing oxygen.

"The results of this study have provided evidence that applying nutrients to the soil is not the environmental nightmare that many people have made it out to be," Harrison says.

During the study, researchers applied chemicals to turf plots four times a year in an effort to simulate the practices of professional lawn care firms. The plots were either established with sod or had been seeded with one of two types of grass, and water runoff was achieved by saturating the plots with water in excess of the amount of rainfall a lawn would normally receive.

"We were attempting to answer the basic question of what was actually ending up in the water. We ignored all of the other complex pathways of degradation and recycling that fertilizers and pesticides enter into," Harrison explains.

The Penn State study, as well as two other recent studies conducted at northeastern universities, all investigated the impact of turfgrass management on the quality of water. The results from all three studies are similar.

Despite these findings, Harrison believes there is still room to improve the handling, storage, mixing, application and disposal of fertilizers and pesticides in order to minimize the risk of water or soil contamination.

"Fertilizers and pesticides are manageable. People just have to educate themselves about what they are doing," Harrison says. "Unfortunately, there is conflicting information for people who want perfect lawns but live in an environmentally concerned society."

The Penn State researcher acknowledges the myriad products currently on the market that are turning lawn care into a baffling Saturday morning science for homeowners.

Harrison suggests consumers carefully read product labels, adopt realistic lawn maintenance goals and consider both the economic and environmental trade-offs when purchasing lawn care products.

"People's expectations for their front lawns are being influenced by the golf course they saw on television last weekend," Harrison says. "In the long run, they may just have to decide to live with a few dandelions and grass that isn't as green."

SUNFLOWER

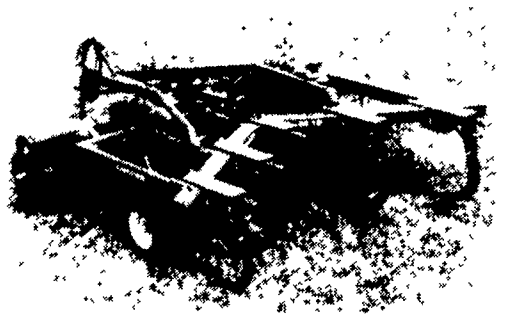
COULTER RIPPER



Sunflower's Coulter Ripper is for today's conservation minded farmer demanding deep tillage with minimal residue disturbance. These durable machines feature adjustable front mounted coulters on 7½" centers. The coulter blades have an added advantage of slicing hard ground to keep clod size to a minimum. The V-bar ripper design gives added trash clearance and pulls smoother than straight-bar rippers. These coulter rippers are built Sunflower tough and no ballast is added to the frame increasing the structural strength. Check out Sunflower's latest edition to its growing family of quality tillage equipment at a farm show or dealer near you.

Conservation Tillage Equipment Built SUNFLOWER Tough!

MAXIMIZER™ COMBINES DELIVER ON THEIR PROMISE. EVEN WHEN CONDITIONS AREN'T PROMISING

"Bigger capacity. Cleaner grain and more of it." That's what new-technology Maximizer combines promise. And they deliver in all harvest conditions—good, bad and indifferent.

Threshing capacity is thorough and gentle with a larger slower-speed cylinder and large concave area. Samples are cleaner, thanks to the Quadra-Flo™ system with its precleaner, four high velocity fans, chaffer and sieve.

Stop in. You'll see that the total feature combination, along with traditional John Deere reliability and dealer service, gives you more reason than ever to go Maximizer.

That's a promise.

IN STOCK, READY TO GO! A MAXIMIZER WITH THE HORSEPOWER YOU NEED.

Capacity and efficiency for fast harvesting

When it comes to harvesting, you can't beat the heavy-duty performance that's built into the New Holland Model 790 forage harvester. Performance starts at the cutterhead. The 19½-inch wide, 12-knife cutterhead delivers a fine uniform chop that's just right for most silage feeding operations. And an electric clutch gives instant response and positive control on the reversing gearbox. The Model 790 is available with either a 540-rpm or a 1000-rpm PTO drive.

Stop in today and trade for the performance leader in harvesters—the "790" from Ford New Holland.

A great little tedder for small fields

The New Holland Model 157 tedder maneuvers easily because it's tractor mounted, yet fluffs up a wide 10' swath. The left-hand rotor repositions for narrow transport

Come in and see the New Holland Model 157. It's ideal for small fields

TORQUE AMPLIFIERS & CLUTCHES

★ New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
★ 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
★ Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability. Our studies have shown that 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows:

*5 yr - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 ry - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit
Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645.00 and carles a *2 yr. - 100% parts & labor warranty.
* Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450 00
We also have units & parts available to rebuild old style TA's, including ramp & carrier sets
NEW price on ramps & carriers - $200 00

PROOF THAT OPTIMALLY GROWN HEIFERS ARE HEAVIER MILK PRODUCERS.

The most obvious reason for heifers to freshen on Purina's recommended 24 month/1,400 pound schedule is increased milk production in the first lactation. While both factors are important, records at the Northeast DHI Processing Center prove that weight has more influence than age. Note in the graph how production increases as body weight increases. At the 1,250 pound level, most of the improvement in milk potential has been realized. Heifers at the heaviest body weight actually show a decline in milking ability, presumably because of improper mammary development resulting from excessive growth rates.

That's all the more reason to feed those replacement calves the dependable Purina Startena Growena.
